FORMER G.O.P. COMMITTEE MEMBER SAID TO BE INDICTED

Willis Benson Reported at Clayton to Be Charged With Fraud Conspiracy in Naming of Judges Who Served at Primary Election
Last August.

FIVE INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN INQUIRY
Others Contain Names of Persons Alleged to Have Committed Frauds in Certain Precincts—Woman Charged With Perjury.

The St. Louis County grand jury late yesterday returned five indictments in connection with the investigation of alleged wholesale fraud in the primary election of Aug. 1. One indictment, it is understood in Clayton, charges Willis Benson, former member of the Republican County Committee from Central Township, and two other men, with conspiracy in connection with the service of certain precinct judges in the primary.

It is further understood that the two other men were indicted also for alleged fraud at one precinct, where it had been charged gross violations of the ballot were committed.

Benson was notified to appear as a witness before the grand jury, but he failed to appear at the courthouse on several occasions was excused without having testified. Had he testified he would have been immune from indictment. Nov. 20 Harry Kassebaum, who was formerly secretary of the Republican County Committee, and who had made a statement concerning the primary judges to Attorney-General Barrett and Special Assistant Attorney-General
Randolph Laughlin, Aug. 15, appeared as a grand jury witness.

Supposition as to Testimony.
Testimony before the grand jury is secret, but the supposition has been that Kassebaum's testimony was along the lines of his statement.
In his statement he declared that Benson handed in his list of persons recommended for appointment as Central Township precinct judges at a meeting of the Republican Committee in Clayton, July 14.

The Republican and Democratic County Committees each recommended six persons for each precinct for each election and three from each group have been appointed customarily
by the County Court, which is placed in charge of elections by the law. The County Court's disregard of a protest by citizens as to the appointment of some of the judges recommended resulted in the formation of the Clean Election League, which proved victorious over "Boss"
Fred Benson in the general election last month.

Kassebaum went on to declare that he placed the list of persons recommended by Benson, which Benson gave him at the meeting, under a book in the law office where the meeting was held. He said he did not look at the list and hence could not tell whether the names were typed or hand-written. He went to Judge, he said, and when he returned he found what appeared to be names on the list, with about 30 names typed over them.

How List Was Handled.
Kassebaum said that he took the list of Benson and the other committeemen to the Watchman-Advocate, "Boss" Essen's paper, to copy them all on a typewriter for presentation to the County Court. A clerk known to him as a deputy of Clark Seibel of the County Court came in and offered to help, he asserted. This man, he said, did about half the work.

Officials said, following Kassebaum's statement, that in many of the 35 precincts of the County Court
the first three Republicans recommended for judges were known as residents, but that the last three were unknown. There was much complaint after the primary by voters who said they did not know their judges in some precincts.
The grand jury heard three other cases.

FASCISTI TO CLUB CRIMINALS, SEND THEM TO HOSPITAL

Treatment of Veteran Offenders to Be Such as to Land Them in Cemetery.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Dec. 5.—Criminals instead of being imprisoned, in the administration of justice under the Fascist regime in the province of Alessandria, Dr. Ramondo Sala, the secretary, said in an address to malefactor summoned before him.
"Hereafter the Fascist undertakes the administration of justice, adopting different laws from those of the judicial authorities," Dr. Sala said. "Whoever is guilty will not be sent to prison but to the hospital—after being clubbed."
"If after such lessons veteran offenders still persist the next time the clubbing will be such as to send them not to the hospital but to the cemetery."
After this warning, the criminals, including murderers, thieves, forgers
and blackmailers, filed before Dr.
Sala, who took their names and addresses and asked whether they were employed. If so he promised to find them work.
A short time later two of the men who had attended the meeting were found dead in the market place. The Fascist clubbed them severely, bundled them off to a hospital and then denounced them to the judicial authorities.

$25,000 LUMBER YARD FIRE AT AFFTON, ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Blaze in Holckamp Company's Plant Believed to Have Been Caused by Overheated Stove.

Fire last night caused $25,000 damage to the office building and stock of the Holckamp Lumber Co., at Affton, St. Louis County, according to an estimate furnished today by Fred W. Holckamp, president of the company.
The blaze was discovered shortly after 10:30 o'clock. A small coal stove in the office is believed by officials to have become overheated.
The blaze spread to the stock yard,
and the discovery of the fire was made by Ben Storeman, foreman of the yard, who saw the blaze
from his home, some distance away.
The loss is covered by insurance.

INCENDIARY FIREMEN REINSTATED

Freeport (N. Y.) Men Promise to Refrain From Setting Blazes for Fun.

By the Associated Press.
FREEPORT, N. Y., Dec. 5.—On their promise to refrain from setting any more fires for excitement, four firemen, who were suspended from the local department two weeks ago were reinstated last night at a special meeting of the Freeport Fire Council. They were placed on six months' probation.
All were members of truck company No. 1 and had admitted setting small fires because they loved to "make a run" with the engines.

CLEMENCEAU VISITS HARDING AT WHITE HOUSE

"Tiger" of France, Wearing His "Tube" Hat, Presented to the President by Ambassador Jusserand.

PLANS TO CALL ON WILSON TOMORROW

Program in Capital Includes Speech Before the War College and One Formal Address.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Georges Clemenceau paid his respects today to President Harding. Arriving at the White House three minutes before 10 o'clock, the hour at which the President was to receive him, he was ushered immediately into the executive offices, where the President greeted him.
The "Tiger" of France, looking hale and jaunty and wearing his "tube"—high hat—for the second time since his arrival in America, was accompanied by Jules Jusserand,
and the French Ambassador, who presented him to the President.
A small crowd which had gathered outside the White House grounded applauded Clemenceau
when he arrived.
Late tomorrow the war-time Premier will call on former President Wilson, with whom he sat in the council of the Big Five at Versailles. Prior to his arrival here yesterday it had been reported that the visit to the former President would follow immediately the call on President Harding, but it was made known today that no definite engagement had been made until 5
p. m. tomorrow.

Up Before the Dawn.
Clemenceau was up early today, eager for his first glimpse by the light of the capital. It was dusk when he arrived late yesterday and he obtained only a glimpse of the city as he was taken by automobile to the Crescent place home of Henry White, former Ambassador to France and one of America's peace commissioners at Versailles, who is his host during his Washington visit.
A President Harding and M. Clemenceau did not discuss serious affairs of state at his conference, it was said, officially at the White House.
The call of the former Premier, it was stated, was merely one of courtesy.

From the White House, where he spent 40 minutes, Clemenceau drove to the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and then to the home of Mr. White.
M. Clemenceau apparently was deeply impressed by the massive memorial to America's Civil War President. During the ascent of the long flights of steps he stopped frequently to ask questions of Ambassadors and secretaries. He stood in silence before the huge statue of Lincoln within the memorial. Turning then to the left, he read the Lincoln Gettysburg address carved in the wall, and crossing the structure he read part of the statement of the martyred President to the Congress.

ist police in confiscating the passports of 100 Armenians as they were about to board ship, British troops today took possession of the customs house and, armed with machine guns, protected the embarkation of

The Turkish police today prevented the embarkation of refugees on a

PERSHING SUPPORTS EFFORT OF ST. LOUIS TO GET NATIONAL AIR MEET

GEN. PERSHING, while in St. Louis yesterday afternoon, expressed his interest in the city's effort to obtain the meet of the National Aeronautical Association and the Pulitzer air race next fall.

"I am a Missourian," the General said to a Post-Dispatch reporter who mentioned the matter to him, "and you can put me down as being in favor of St.
Louis for the air meet of next year. Anything that aids in the advance of aviation makes for better national defense. And I believe St. Louis is an excellent location for such an event. I would like to visit Lambert Field, and see the proposed place for the meet, but my schedule will not permit it."
"I have been much interested in the development of the lighter-than-air station at Scott Field and I regret very much that I cannot go over there at this time."

CUT-RATE BARBER WORK PROVES TO BE COSTLY

Man's Coat, Containing Two $500 Bonds, Taken by Another Patron of College.

The barber college, with its cut-rate haircuts and nominal-priced shaves, administered by students—you're lucky if you get a senior—was a means of economy which appealed to Louis P. Clancy of 3934 Natural Bridge avenue. Clancy entered one of these institutions, at 811
Market street, yesterday afternoon, and ordered the two chief courses in the curriculum.
Clancy hung his coat and raincoat on a rack, and gave them fleeting glances while the undergraduate cut his hair. Then, as the chair was tilted back for the shave, he lost sight of the garments, and saw only the earnest countenance of the collegian bending over him.

When the hot towel was removed and the patron was jerked back to a sitting posture, he saw on the rack, instead of his own coat and raincoat,
a ragged coat. Another patron, it was recalled, had left hurriedly a few minutes before.

Clancy was then exchanged coat to Police Headquarters, and reported that his coat pocket had contained two $500 bonds of the Ajax Tire and Rubber Co., which he had bought but had not registered, and which, therefore, were negotiable. However, Clancy had saved 25 cents on his haircut and shave, so it was not a total loss. Also, it may be noted, the same thing might have happened
in a regular-price barber shop.

NO CITY CHRISTMAS TREE FOR TWELFTH BOULEVARD

Trees Will Be Placed on Lawns About City Hall This Year.

City officials have decided not to have Christmas trees on Twelfth boulevard this season and also to dispense with the municipal dance in this thoroughfare. Park Commissioner Pape announced today. He said it had been decided that this custom of the last 10 years was no longer popular enough to justify the expense of having large trees decorated with multicolored lights.
But the Christmas spirit will prevail officially just the same, as trees will be placed on the lawns of the city hall and Municipal Courts building, with the largest tree between the two buildings, and there will be a music program, dancing
by playmates of children and public dancing in the city hall the night of Dec. 28.

24 PASSENGERS ON WABASH TRAIN ARE HURT IN WRECK

Three Coaches of No. 14, Bound for St. Louis, Overturned Near Shenandoah, Ia., Last Night.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENT NOT DETERMINED

Derailing Occurs Just After Crossing Bridge Over Creek—150 Yards of Track Torn Up.

By the Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 5.—Twenty-four passengers on Wabash Railroad train No. 14, which left Omaha for St. Louis at 5:55 p. m. yesterday, were more or less seriously hurt,
and nearly 100 others shocked and slightly bruised when the train was derailed about six miles north of Shenandoah, Ia., early last night.
The cause of the wreck has not been determined.
The train was going about 40 miles an hour and just had crossed a bridge over a creek when the tender of the locomotive left the track, three coaches turning over. Nearly 150 yards of track was torn from its bed.
According to reports received here,
none of the passengers was fatally injured. Most of them were able to continue to St. Louis.

Among the injured were William Shoemaker and Mary Stillman, Maryville, Mo.; J. W. Caughlin, Omaha, back hurt; Fred Bandiera, Omaha, arm broken; F. H. Keller, Omaha, head injuries; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, Council Bluffs, Ia., cut and bruised; William Walker, Stansberry, Mo., leg hurt; William Hanson, St.
C. Young, special Wabash agent,
Moberly, Mo., right leg hurt.

Doctors and nurses were rushed to the scene from Shenandoah, Imogene and other nearby towns. A wrecking train was sent from Council Bluffs.

Wreck Relate Experiences.

Several passengers from the wrecked train, who arrived in St.
Louis at 3:40 p. m. on Wabash train
No. 20, told their experiences in the wreck.

T. H. Joekel of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, said:
"We were going along at about 40 miles an hour when I felt a severe jolt and presently the train stopped.
I got out and found that the three cars, one baggage and two day coaches, which were in front of the car in which I was riding, had overturned."

"The accident was caused by the tender going off the track, and had not the engine left its place I believe there would have been several deaths. The accident occurred about three miles east of Imogene, Ia., which is about 40 miles out of Omaha."

Some of the passengers told a Post-Dispatch reporter that, in their opinion, the wreck was caused by spreading rails due to rotted ties. The track was torn up for about 100 yards, they said.

HEAD OF YOUNG WOMAN FOUND AT INCINERATION PLANT

Skull Crushed and Authorities Convinced Unidentified Girl Was Victim of Murder.

By the Associated Press.
PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Dec. 5.—
District Attorney Morris and two physicians who investigated the finding of the head of a young woman at the incineration plant here announced today that they were convinced that "an unidentified girl was the victim of a brutal murder."
The back of the head, near the base of the skull, showed a large fracture. Wads of cotton were found in the nostrils, ears and mouth. The victim's red hair had been cut off, only a few strands remaining. Physicians who inspected the head said the girl was between 15 and 20 years of age.

CLARA PHILLIPS SAWS WAY OUT OF LOS ANGELES JAIL

Woman Under Sentence of 10 Years to Life for Hammer Murder Escapes During the Night.

SHE APPARENTLY HAD HELP FROM OUTSIDE

Believed to Have Swung Up to Roof From Cell Window and Escaped Through Another Building.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.— Mrs. Clara Phillips, convicted of the "hammer murder" of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, and under sentence of from 10 years to life imprisonment, escaped from the county jail here early today. She sawed her way through the steel bars on her cell window of the women's department of the jail and fled to an adjoining building and got away.

No Trace of Fillings.
Close examination of the cell window and the three sawed bars failed to reveal any trace of the saw filings.
This led to the opinion by investigators that the bars may have been sawed through several days prior to the escape.

Mrs. Phillips' cell was at the extreme east end of the top floor of the four-story county jail building, and overlooked a small court some 60 feet below and 10 feet wide.

May Have Climbed to Roof.
Three steel bars, each an inch thick, had been sawed in two in the window of Mrs. Phillips' cell. The bars were pulled from their places, leaving an opening of about two feet square, through which Mrs. Phillips had crawled.

With extraordinary strength Mrs.
Phillips apparently climbed up to the top of the jail building. She is believed then to have gone from the roof of the jail to an adjoining building, a descent of 20 feet,
by sliding down a water drain pipe.
From the building next to the jail,
she is believed to have escaped down
the stairs. She apparently had help from the outside.

Mrs. Phillips was barefooted when she escaped, as her toe prints were found in the dirt on the roof of the building.

In the adjoining cell to Mrs. Phillips was a negro, Alma Smith, who declared she did not hear Mrs. Phillips leave her cell.

Mrs. Phillips left several articles of clothing behind in her cell.

Was in Cell at 2 A. M.
At 2 o'clock this morning Mrs. O.
D. Fisher, matron on duty, stopped at the door of the cell occupied by Mrs. Phillips, but noticed nothing unusual. When she made the next round of the cells at 7 o'clock to summon the prisoners to breakfast, Mrs. Fisher discovered Mrs. Phillips' cell empty.

All Southern California cities have been notified of the escape and authorities at the border warned in time, the Sheriff believes, to prevent the fugitive from reaching Mexico.

Deputy Sheriff went to interview Madame Obenshain, released from jail last night. She occupied an adjoining cell to Mrs. Phillips'. Officials were also dispatched to interview Ola Weaver and Elta Jackson, sisters of the escaped slayer, and to locate, if possible, her husband, Armour Phillips. Deputies reported he had left his rooming place yesterday.

Gave Notice of Appeal.
Sheriff Traeger ordered every possible officer to take up the search.
Mrs. Phillips was sentenced on Nov. 27 to serve from 10 years to life in the penitentiary at San Quentin.
Her commitment was delayed
when she gave notice of appeal, which carried a 10-day stay of execution. Attorneys were not certain that an appeal would be perfected and it was expected that after a stay of 10 days in jail she would be transferred to State prison.

Sea in Motor Boat.

By the Associated Press.
LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 5.—A long scarf similar to that worn by Clara Phillips during her trial and believed to have been in her possession at the time of her escape from the Los Angeles County Jail was found today in an abandoned automobile here. Authorities here stated a theory that she may have put to sea in a motor boat or may be hiding here.

HOTEL SOUNDS "CALL FOR MR. CHATTERTON"

Unpaid Bill Is Reason for Desire to See Man Who Chatted With Circuit Attorney.

A visitor who introduced himself as Robert Chatterton, prosecuting attorney of Knoxville, Tenn., made himself much at home last week
around Circuit Attorney Sidenor's office, and had a room at the Claridge Hotel.

Now Sidenor and the hotel management are wondering whether they will see the affable Chatterton again.
The hotel is more directly interested than Sidenor is, as it has an unpaid bill for the Tennesseean's accommodations. Also, a service car driver, with a stand near the hotel, who drove him about the city for four days at a stipulated price of $15 a day, would like to know the exact value of a check for $30, which he says is the only pay he got.

Posed as a Prosecutor.
The service car driver called at the Circuit Attorney's office, 317 Municipal Court Building, this afternoon, and asked for Chatterton. "He told me this was his office," the man said.

Sidenor replied that the office was not yet Chatterton's, though the visitor had spent considerable time there in the last few days. The pretext of his visit was the Hohenschild trial, which Chatterton attended on several different days, having at times a woman companion, whom he took inside the lawyers' enclosure with him. One day he brought a number of law books into the court, as if to assist in the State's case against the president of the defunct Night and Day Bank.

Chatterton related to Sidenor, and to reporters that he had prosecuted several officials of a bank in Johnson City, Tenn., in a case like that against Hohenschild, and had convicted some of them, but was collecting points for the handling of the remaining cases.

Called at Sidenor's Home.
"Last Sunday," Sidenor related,
"he called at my home and I understood him to say he came in a car belonging to a wealthy Mr. Brown. I looked out of the window and saw a brown taxicab."

That was one day later than the last time he was seen at the Claridge. The clerk there said he disappeared on Saturday without settling. Last Thursday he reported that $800 had been stolen from his room at the hotel.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE IMPOSSIBLE

Senator Norris in his report arguing for direct election of the President, declared the electoral college was a relic of the past.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Members of the new Progressive bloc in Congress won its first legislative victory
today by obtaining from the Senate Agriculture Committee, whose membership includes a number of members of the new progressive bloc, a favorable report on a resolution to amend the Constitution to provide for direct election of the President and Vice President.

The amendment also would change presidential inauguration day from March 4 to the third Monday in January and members of the Senate and House would begin their terms of office the first Monday in January after the biennial elections. Congress would meet in regular session annually on the first Monday in January.

While a Judiciary subcommittee was holding hearings on a resolution with such provisions offered by Senator Ashurst, Democrat, of Arizona, the Agriculture Committee authorized its chairman to report a resolution as a substitute for one by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, to prohibit defeated members of Congress from voting on other than routine legislation in the session of the old Congress meeting after elections.

The Caraway resolution was sent to the Agriculture Committee when introduced recently at the request of its author, who said that if sent to the Judiciary Committee it probably would be allowed to die.

GEN. PERSHING, SPEAKING AT DINNER 'AS MISSOURIAN,' ADVOCATES PREPAREDNESS

A. E. F. Commander Asks That New Constitution Give the Right to Vote to Soldiers From the State.

Gen. John J. Pershing made two requests of his fellow-Missourians in his speech after the dinner of the Military Order of the World War at the Planters Hotel last night. He asked them to urge measures of national preparedness on their Congressmen, and to elect other Congressmen if those they have do not show an interest in this matter.

He asked them also to make it possible, under the new Constitution, for him and other Missouri soldiers to vote in their home state. The present State Constitution says, "No officer, soldier or marine in the regular army or navy of the United States shall be entitled to vote at any election in this state."

Demands Correction of Wrong. "So," commented the commander of the American Expeditionary Force, "I find myself classified with idiots, Indians and felons. As a Missourian, I demand that this wrong be corrected when the new Constitution is written."

The dinner gathering filled the second floor dining room of the Planters Hotel, the occasion having been announced as the "last public function to be held in the Planters, which is to close Jan. 1. About one-half wore the uniforms of officers of the army or navy, and most of the others displayed the buttons of service organizations.

Aloe Represents City. President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen represented the city, Mayor Kiel having acted as host for Rodolph Valentino, film star, during the day. Aloe, in his introductory talk, expressed the belief that most of the people of St. Louis did not approve the attitude of Georges Clemenceau, wartime French Premier, who spoke here Saturday, although they honored Clemenceau as a statesman. He spoke of Clemenceau's present appeal to the American people as an attempt to revive animosity against Germany.

The other introductory speakers were Col. Albert T. Perkins, presiding officer, the Rev. Father T. D. Kennedy, Chaplain of the Thirty-fifth Division, and the Rev. John W. Day, pastor of the Church of the Messiah. Perkins praised Gen. Pershing as a statesman, because of his utterances in his speech at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon, earlier in the day. Father Kennedy spoke of war as a means of obtaining better conditions in time of peace. Dr. Day declared that he was not a pacifist, and that Gen. Pershing and other noted military men were not militarists; also that pacifists were often irritating and quarrelsome folk. "It is as useless to pass resolutions against war as it is to wish to forget the trials of war, but we must not be ashamed of what we have done."

Tells of Train Incident. Gen. Pershing, alluding to the clergyman who had preceded him, told a story of a young woman he had met on a train (he being in "civilian" at the time), who had asked him if he was ever mistaken for Gen. Pershing, and who, at his suggestion, had dressed at what his profession might be. She thought he might be a lawyer or a physician, but when he suggested that he might be a clergyman, she said, "Oh, no, I would never imagine that."

"All over the country," that Gen.

eral said, "we have men who fought in the world war. These men have to do their part in maintaining the spirit of national preparedness. Don't sit idly by and allow this question to die a natural death. Send some men to Congress who have national and international vision, and if they don't fulfill your expectations, send men the next time who will."

"Don't Sit Idly By."

"The lessons that we learned must be made to sink deep into the minds of those who haven't gone through the horrors of war. If we allow a pacifist Congress, or a radical Congress, to neglect provision for the future, the blame will properly rest on the men who served in the war. It is your duty to talk of this matter, not perhaps to go about as I am doing, but to talk with your neighbors. Don't sit idly by and let the pacifists put it over, in the face of five million men who have served their country."

Gen. Pershing spoke of the 102nd Division of reserve officers, established here, as being a tradition, and "nothing to live down." He said there should be no antagonism between the regular army and the National Guard, both being parts of the same whole, with a definite relation established between them, the regular army being required to help the Guard and the reserve forces in specific ways.

Gen. Pershing left for Chicago last night after the dinner speech which was his second address of the day here. At the Chamber of Commerce luncheon, he made an argument for the ship subsidy bill, though without using the word "subsidy."

Speech at Luncheon. "What would happen to us," he demanded, "if we were to scrap our merchant marine, and found ourselves involved in another war? I would like to be able to put you in my position in France in the spring of 1918, when we had 120-odd thousand men, and could see no way to transport more than one division a month. It was only by the most arduous exertion, and the expenditure of three billions, that we were able by the summer of 1918 to transport a million men, leaving it to our allies to transport the other million. I can't for the life of me see why we as a people don't demand a merchant marine purely as a matter of defense. As a commercial proposition, it is equally urgent, but I am not here to discuss that, and mention it only as food for thought."

This utterance was not applauded

by the audience, although some other parts of the address were.

Tells of Anti-War Pledge.

At another point, he spoke of a movement to pledge young men against taking part in war, and said that at a meeting in an assembly room called the Town Hall in New York, 1800 young men had signed a declaration of intention never to take part in war, defensive or otherwise, international or civil, either as combatants, as makers of munitions, subscribers to war loans or industrial workers replacing soldiers. "What do Missourians think of such a pledge as that?" he asked. "I don't need to ask. Think of men who enjoy the benefits of our citizenship, making a declaration of that sort. It is treason."

"We are not a military nation," he said, "but we come about as near fighting at the drop of the hat as any. Our record is clear—we have never had a war of aggression, or conquest, or revenge, and any preparation we make is for national defense, and no other purpose."

Mother Throws Baby to Safety. By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—A woman was fatally injured and a score of other persons hurt by flying debris and brick today when the front wall of a building being demolished at Canal and Basin streets gave way and fell to the sidewalk. Mrs. Ruth Williams Villito, with her child, was knocked down by the flying debris. Her skull was fractured and she died in a hospital soon afterwards. Her baby was uninjured, the mother having thrown it to safety before being knocked down by the flying debris.

RECEPTION HALTS SAMPAIO CORREIA

Americans, Amid Feasting and Celebration, Unable to Depart From Para, Brazil.

By GEORGE T. BYE

PARA, Brazil, Dec. 4.—Because of the reception accorded the flyers from New York to Rio de Janeiro, they have to delay their departure for Maranhao until Thursday. It has been impossible for us to proceed with preparations for continuing our flight Wednesday, as planned, as we are constantly being kidnapped by committees from the official Entertainment Commission.

Whenever Lieut. Hinton, Dr. Martins or Wilshusen leave the Grand Hotel for the seaplane they are diverted to clubs, schools or hospitals, and return in a daze, swathed in ribbons and loaded with flowers. Raitzel sets up his movie camera and is at once swept off his feet by enthusiastic crowds that insist on carrying him and his camera on their shoulders. The anteroom of our hotel suite has the constant attendance of the president of the Entertainment Committee or his aids. Each of us has a Boy Scout orderly. The privacy of goldfish in a museum is cloistered sanctity compared with our condition. Hinton, Martins and myself, in our pajamas, were forced to receive 10 delegations before 7:30 o'clock yesterday. They were representatives of the Chauffeurs' Union, the dock laborers, merchants, newspaper men and Entertainment Commissioners. Two priests who also came are to celebrate an open-air mass for our safety. For every meal we eat here music is supplied by all the artists of Para.

OATS GROWING CHAMPIONSHIP IS WON BY CANADIAN ENTRY

J. W. Bigland of Lacombe, Alta., Takes Prize at Chicago—Indiana Boy Takes Junior Honors.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Canada won the oats growing championship at the international grain and hay show last night. The entry of J. W. Bigland of Lacombe, Alta., won the sweepstakes over a large field of American and Canadian growers competing for the $10,000 in cash prizes offered by the Chicago Board of Trade. Bigland's sample weighed 48 1/2 pounds to the bushel. Canadian farmers were even more elated over carrying off the premier wheat growing honors. The Board of Trade cup was awarded to R. O. Wyler, Luseland, Sask., for having grown the best wheat produced on the continent this year. He won with a sample of hard red spring Montana had held the title. It having been won last year by G. W. Kraft of Roseman, from J. C. Mitchell of Rahinda, Sask. Glen Phares, 13 years old, of Shelbyville, Ind., who carried off high honors in the junior contest, will be awarded a special silver cup added to the list of trophies and prize money by the Board of Trade.

RODMAN WANAMAKER'S SON SUEED FOR $12,266 BY CASINO FIRM

Corporation Alleges Payment Was Refused on Checks Cashied at Deauville, France.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Judgment for $12,266.82 against John Wanamaker Jr., son of Rodman Wanamaker, was entered by default in the County Clerk's office yesterday in favor of the Societe Anonyme des Casinos de Deauville Et Cannes. The corporation conducts casinos at French watering places, where many wealthy Americans sustained heavy gambling losses last summer. Hyacinthe Ringrose, counsel for the corporation, explained that the company did not conduct gambling enterprises, but sold concessions for such purposes on a commission basis. Ringrose alleged that Wanamaker cashed a check for 20,000 francs and one for 25,000 francs at the Deauville Casino on July 15, and another for 100,000 francs the following day. Payment was refused, Ringrose said, when the checks were presented at the American Express Co.'s Paris office.

89 AUTOS ON RIVER SHIPMENT

Saving Over Rail Rates Is Approximately $75.

The tow which left yesterday noon with the Nokomis, of the Government barge line, carried 89 Chevrolet automobiles consigned to Memphis and New Orleans, a shipment about three times as large as any previous automobile shipment handled by the Mississippi-Warrior Service.

The saving over rail rates effected on this shipment, which weighed 127,735 pounds, was approximately $75. Of the automobiles, 21 were consigned to Memphis, to which the water rate is 24.5 cents a hundred pounds less than the rail rate, and 68 to New Orleans, to which the rate saving is 15 cents. The barge line regularly handles smaller automobile shipments from Eastern and Northern manufacturers as well as from St. Louis.

TWO BROTHERS ELECTROCUTED

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Dec. 5.—Two brothers were electrocuted here last night, one dying in an effort to save the other.

While George Castleberry, a painter, 28 years old, was removing an electric light bulb from a socket, he came in contact with a live wire and was killed almost instantly. His younger brother William, 18, seeing his plight, attempted to pull him from the wire and also was electrocuted. Both were unmarried.

BIGGS TO CONTEST DAUES' ELECTION AS APPEALS JUDGE

Democrat Ran 1235 Behind Republican Opponent — Oakley to Contest Schweitzer's Election.

Davis Biggs, commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, who was Democratic candidate for Judge of that court in the election of Nov. 7, announced today that he would file a contest proceeding, in the State Supreme Court, against Judge Charles H. Daues, Republican, who was elected, on the face of the official figures, by a plurality of 1235. The correct figures on the count for this judgeship were made known by the Secretary of State's office.

Biggs said that notice of the proceeding was being prepared, to be served on Judge Daues at once. After this he will have 10 days to file the proceeding in the Supreme Court. The Court of Appeals district includes St. Louis city and 23 counties. Ernest P. Oakley, Prosecuting Attorney, a Democrat, announced today that he would file a contest proceeding, in the Circuit Court, against A. L. Schweitzer, Republican, who was returned officially as being elected to the office of Prosecuting Attorney by a plurality of 11,015.

It is understood, in Democratic circles, that several other contests will be filed by defeated Democratic candidates within the few days remaining of the legal period of 30 days after the official announcement of the count. Among these contests, it is understood, will be one of Jesse Lukenbill against W. L. Tamme for Recorder of Deeds; and possibly one of M. C. H. Arendes against Edmund Koehn, for Collector.

In each case it will be charged that votes were miscounted in large numbers. The Circuit Court, on receiving the petitions, will have the power to order a recount of the ballots. The time within which a candidate could demand a recount, without a court order, has passed. One of the few election contests here which resulted in ousting a man returned as having been elected to an office was that of James P. Newell against Frank M. Slater for Public Administrator, by which Newell obtained the office. In that case the plurality by which Slater at first claimed the election was a small one. The pluralities of local Republican candidates in the late election ran from 11,000 to 20,000. Brooklyn Citizen Editor Dies. Special to the Post-Dispatch. The House yesterday authorized the committee to send for all the persons and papers it may need in the inquiry, which will proceed regardless of sessions of the House.

YOUTH IS BEING SOUGHT FOR KILLING OF STEPFATHER

Mother Says Older Son Shot Her Husband When He Was Whipping Brother.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Dec. 2.—Stephen George Green, 18 years old, is sought for the killing of his stepfather, Charles Parker, 44, who was shot and killed in his home here Sunday morning when he was whipping a younger son.
Mrs. Barker said the younger boy was being whipped with a broom, after an argument over the boy's failure to come in from his play for breakfast, when Stephen went into another room, got a revolver, returned to the kitchen, shot Parker and disappeared.

HOW TO KEEP HYDE IN LINE DISCUSSED AT SENATE CAUCUS

Michael E. Casey of Kansas City, one of the older Senators in point of service and always one of the Old Guard. There was evident opposition among the more progressive Senators from the rural sections to oppose Casey and to prefer former Lieutenant-Governor Painter of California.

It is certain that Lieut. Gov. Lloyd, a Republican, will be short of the power to appoint the Senate Committee, and that power will be placed either in the President pro tem or in a Committee on Committees. The Democrats will be adopting new Senate rules, depriving Lloyd of every power except that of presiding over the Senate, which he has under the Constitution, and which cannot be taken from him.

Hollister Mentioned.
Among the Old Guard Senators there is a movement to elect W. R. Hollister, who managed Brockbridge Long's primary campaign for United States Senator, to the position of Secretary of the Senate. This, of course, is with the idea of lining up anti-Roosevelt Senators, who probably are in the majority, for Casey, a strong Roosevelt follower, for President pro tem.

The conference today was arranged very quietly and each Democratic Senator was cautioned not to talk of the meeting. The principal purpose of the secrecy was to keep away from the conference the hordes of job-seekers who always attend pre-legislative conferences if they learn such conferences are to be held.

PART TWO.

MY MESSAGE TO AMERICA

By Georges Clemenceau

This is the Fourth of a series of articles written by the "Father of Victory," the War Premier of France, who became one of the Big Four at the Peace Conference. "The Tiger" is now touring America.

THE GERMAN REVOLT

ON May 7, 1918, fourth anniversary of the torpedoing of the Lusitania, we handed the German plenipotentiaries the peace conditions. In presenting them I said: "This second peace of Versailles, which is about to be the object of our debates, was not a peace of the people represented here for us not to be unanimously resolved to obtain legitimate satisfaction by all the means in our power."

This satisfaction had been allowed for in the treaty, and Germany had signed it. But whoever could have thought that that would be sufficient? One may insert into a solemn pact all sorts of clauses duly agreed upon; one cannot insert the will to respect and to execute them. That is partly a question of loyalty, honor and good will and partly a matter of confidence, guarantees and sanctions.

After the War of 1870 France scrupulously and rapidly fulfilled all her obligations. Pressing deep down in her heart the despair caused by the loss of Alsace and Lorraine, she understood that she could only get on her feet again by work, and she set about working with a view to acquiring compensation in a more intense production for the loss of her two rich provinces. All the world knows how she succeeded. Ever since 1878, at the time of the great success of her International Exhibition, she began to enjoy a moral revenge.

Twisted and Twisted

Scarcely four years have elapsed since the second treaty of Versailles and, with the exception of its territorial clauses, the treaty has been outrageously turned and twisted. By a tragic coincidence having nothing whatever to do with chance, the German reactions hit France just where she is most directly threatened. Whereas France requires reparation and security, what one sees across the Rhine is an economic evasion. The American public is too well informed to credit Germany's plea—in justification of her incapacity to pay—that the collapse of the mark is exclusively due to the obligations imposed upon her by the treaty.

The American public knows that actual gold payments made by Germany to the Reparation Commission have only amounted to $275,000,000, and that in the internal budget of the Reich the total sum paid out under the treaty is less than the figure spent by the German Government in the purchase of raw materials and on railways and in the postal administration. The collapse of the mark was a result and not a cause of the economic situation. It was at one and the same time a means of eluding the reparational payments in rendering the execution of the treaty more and more difficult, and, secondly, it set up competition with allied industry, Germany being immensely benefited by the condition of the exchange.

Mark's Fall Was Engineered

Dumping before the war, speculation in the fall of the mark after the war—our enemy's methods are modified according to circumstances, but his frame of mind never alters. In provoking strikes in England and the United States the Germans hope to find in those countries beneficial commercial reaction and converts to their cause. It must be admitted that there is a certain opposition between the execution by Germany of the reparational clauses and the industrial prosperity of the conquering nations.

To effect there exist only two ways of transferring German riches and property: the one is handing over of merchandise or the surrender of bonds, on a gold basis. But how can one procure these bonds in a continuous manner unless by a surplus of exports? At all events, whatever Germany delivers or sells outside would be so much less to furnish the creditor countries and their industries.

That is the reason there was such a delay in France in applying that section of the treaty relative to reparations in kind; that is why the Versailles accord encountered hostility on all sides; that is why certain of the allies, only scheduled to draw a small part of the reparational payments, were more desirous of proposing a reduction in the German debt than of voting measures to hasten the execution of the payments.

Did not Mr. McKenna come here to say that if England had sought to reduce Germany's payments she had done so because of her own strikers, for whose benefit she wanted to get the merchandise asked for from Germany? Measures, however, imposed themselves when it was seen that Germany, violating that clause in the treaty specifying that Germany were to be at least as heavily taxed as the allies, not only abstained from all serious fiscal effort but practiced a policy of mad extravagance and prodigality—305,000 railroad cars more than in 1914; seven milliards of marks for public works; twelve milliards for the merchant marine, etc. The printing press never ceased turning and a fiduciary inflation without precedent contributed to the devalued collapse of the mark.

"Gold Threatening to Become the Real Imperialism. Did Millions of Men Die for That?"

TAKE CARE! Gold is threatening to become the real imperialism. Did millions of men die for that? They thought they were contributing to the triumph of an ideal, they wished to abolish all rivalry for supremacy, and we seem to have reached so different a situation!

We would seem to have abolished military imperialism, only to be greeted in its stead on economic imperialism. We are happily not yet descended so far, but the economic chaos of these last years, the disorder of the exchanges, tend to give to the richer nations a hegemony no less perilous to themselves than to others. That is where we have arrived—at a most critical crossroads—Georges Clemenceau.

Finally, whereas, in 1918, a law was voted in France strictly prohibiting the export of capital, the purchase of foreign bonds by individuals was tolerated, even encouraged, by the Reich, so much so that one may say without exaggeration that only foreigners now possess marks and that the Germans hold almost exclusively dollars, pounds sterling, florins and Swiss francs! German investments in foreign countries amount apparently to at least a milliard of dollars.

Have I not the right to conclude that the German failure arises not so much from an incapacity to pay as from a determination not to pay?

How to make Germany pay? Above everything else it is necessary to remove the pretext beneath which she is escaping her liabilities, namely, the continuous decrease in the value of her money. The mark needs to be stabilized. I do not know if the thing is possible; I shall simply make two observations. First, that the Germans have in the end become the victims of the movement which they engineered.

The collapse of the mark has gone so far that today they are alarmed at the prospect of forthcoming social consequences. Perhaps now they are disposed to make the effort at recovery that should have been made long ago.

Secondly, we cannot afford to lament over those who speculated in the mark. Consideration of their situation should not hold up any decisions that are necessary. In order to facilitate stabilization, experts ask for a moratorium for Germany. I believe this postponement has not yet been officially accorded, but in point of fact Germany has been enjoying it for more than a year.

Evasion Has Gone Too Far

Such a policy should only be countenanced if guarantees touching the execution of the treaty are increased to double those which already exist. "Are we in possession of these guarantees?" I doubt it. The last London conference broke up without an accord being reached and the Brussels conference is still a project. I hope that all the measures necessary will be taken now, to the end that France, most affected by the moratorium, may not have to bear the consequences alone and that she shall obtain proportionate aid from her allies. Such would be but pure justice, since if Germany is to be given breathing space France ought not to be allowed to expire in consequence.

It will be objected that the moratorium ought not to apply to reparations in kind. That is exact, and I am glad of the recent agreements come to directly between German industrial heads and residents of the devastated districts of France, as allowed for since 1919 in the treaty. Our devastated regions will thus probably come by more raw materials than they require, but our budget will continue to show a deficit; the franc will continue to fall and it will be necessary to rely on a loan in order to advance the sums which Germany owes us, with the result that our responsibilities will become increasingly heavy.

Yes, but it is argued that during that time we can control the finances of the Reich, reduce her expenditure, limit her inflation and forbid the export of her capital. Very good. But, unfortunately, this fine program arrives too late, when the ill already has been done and there is nothing more to control, and when the major portion of Germany's capital has been exported. We have allowed Germany's economic evasion to go too far for such measures now to produce any sensible improvement.

For Interest in Industries

Rather than always to defer the payments, would it not be more rational to work positively at assuring them? A good portion of Germany's fortune is in foreign bonds. Why doesn't the Reich requisition this wealth in order to pay a part at least of her debt? I presume the allies would not hesitate to help her in such a task. Could not a project be further envisaged of giving Germany's creditors an interest in Germany's big industrial and financial organizations. Would not this be a first realization of the general mortgage on German wealth written into the treaty, and which in state property alone amounts to forty milliards of gold marks? Such solutions seem more hopeful than the scheme for a moratorium, purely a negative measure.

Many, however, look for the cure elsewhere. Only an international loan can regulate the question of reparations, and France is accused of not supporting this loan. In point of fact, no one desires the mobilization of allied credit more than we, for we would thus have at our disposal sums which we are at present obliged to borrow from our own people in order to advance such sums in turn to our bankrupt debtor. To facilitate this operation and to contribute to the economic reconstruction of Europe, we would probably be even prepared to forfeit some of our claim. Did we not show it to be so in signing the accord of London in May, 1921? But such a reduction must be held within reasonable limits and be covered by an absolute certainty of payment. The figures suggested by the eminent bankers assembled in Paris some months ago, and postulating the maximum possible sum that could be raised by an international loan, do not give our country even the half of the sum we have already spent in reconstruction and pensions, and we have still to spend as much again. If we are to ratify an agreement by which we would renounce three-quarters of the debt which is due us, it is indispensable that we should be certain of being paid the balance without question.

Difficulty of Floating Loan

And however much the sum may be reduced, what reason is there to think that a gold loan on which Germany was responsible for the interest and amortization would be subscribed by the public when Germany proclaims her inability to pay? And would it be prudent under these conditions to give up the real guarantees provided by the treaty in favor of the bondholders of all countries who would become the privileged creditors?

In reality, on this point, as on many others, there has been too much delay. Each nation, after the signing of peace, pursued its own policy. If we had continued in union, the international loan might have been floated in 1920 and the problem of reparations would not have weighed on the world. Did I not obtain from the British Government in 1919 the promise of a loan? That was the first step after the war in the direction of financial solidarity. Why was it not followed up? I do not know.

Do not let us lose sight of this question of an international loan, which remains, it would appear, the one practical process of regulating the payments, but let us bear in mind that it will only become possible when Germany will have re-established order and restored confidence by a rigorous financial cleaning up and when the allies have reverted to a policy of interdependence.

In regard to sanctions, here again we have allowed the hour to slip by.

I am one of those who believe that if they had been taken at the very start and energetically applied, sanctions would have brought Germany to a sterner comprehension of her duties. But people hesitated and debated. England and Belgium even renounced one of the measures most feared by Germany—namely, the seizure of German property in foreign countries. Even with us, the project for the occupation of the Ruhr had partisans and detractors.

Energy Spent on War

In short, the power of sanctions has been lost and now if we consider the measures which have retained the name of "sanctions," it will be found that we are dealing with the seizure and realization of productive guarantees attributed to creditor nations without restriction or reserve by Article 248 of the treaty. If we are driven to such measures we should at least be sure of obtaining something tangible at once, but should we have recourse to this policy?

France does not conceal from herself the gravity of such a decision. She would much prefer not to go to such an extreme, but she cannot agree to her bill being torn up entirely after already having been considerably reduced. It does not depend on her whether the idea of seizure and sanctions shall prevail or not prevail; it is a matter of good will on the side of Germany and of determination, quite shortly, on the side of the allies.

After a long and sustained effort, nervous depression is inevitable. It would seem that the peoples and Governments of the Entente lost the better part of their energy once the war had been won and peace concluded, and that they became only capable of improvisation, abandoned as lightly as elaborated. I shall not retrace in detail the national conferences since 1920; I shall not enumerate all the renunciations agreed to. Under the pressure of England, France lent herself to all kinds of combinations, even when these were most prejudicial to her. What has resulted if not more chaos? At each meeting the negotiations, working out some new formula, proceeded to make resolutions which worked

JEAN LONGUET, IN ST. LOUIS, TERMS 'TIGER' ALARMIST

French Socialist Leader Declares Clemenceau Does Not Represent a Majority of French People.

'FRANCE MUST CUT GERMAN DEMANDS'

Says 65 Per Cent Reduction in Reparations Sought Is Necessary to Re-establish Economic Order in Europe

France must reduce its demands upon Germany for reparations about 65 per cent in order to re-establish economic order in Europe, said Jean Longuet, French Socialist leader, who is touring a part of the United States to reply to some statements being made by Georges Clemenceau, wartime Premier of France, who was in St. Louis last week.

Longuet said the "Tiger" personifies the jingo and alarmist of France; that while he has a certain prestige, he does not represent a party, and certainly not the majority of the French people who are in favor of a peace of understanding and not of revenge.

Longuet is in St. Louis as the guest of the local Socialist party and will deliver a public address tonight at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard. He was met by W. M. Brandt, defeated Socialist candidate for the United States Senate, and was escorted to the Maryland Hotel.

Grandson of Karl Marx

Longuet is a grandson of Karl Marx and expounds the Marxian philosophy. His father was expelled from France by the Commune of 1871, and he was born and reared in England, later returning to France, where he established the newspaper "Le Populaire," of which he is now editor. He was a Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies during the war, but was defeated in the last election. He predicted that the next election, in 1924, will result in a complete overthrow of the reactionaries and those who would crush Germany.

"I am utterly opposed to the policy promulgated by M. Clemenceau," he said. "We Socialists do not believe in ruining Germany; we believe such a policy to be foolhardy, particularly without helping France. M. Clemenceau offers no solution to the present problems that now confront Europe. His policy is revenge, hate, denunciation. Any reasonable person will tell you that the only enduring peace is one of understanding, co-operation and helpfulness. M. Clemenceau is only paving the way to more wars."

All the left wing parties of France and Germany, said Longuet, are eager for a peace that will bring the two countries in accord as to the bill for reparations and method of payment. His idea is that Germany should be required to pay not more than $10,000,000,000, and the first years of this in labor and materials. France, he said, needed at least 25,000,000,000 francs, which Germany could furnish for a few years as part of the reparations, together with materials to be used in reconstruction of the devastated areas.

"There is no doubt," said Longuet, "that the left wing element of monarchists and jingoes in Germany who are against paying anything, but they are hopelessly in the minority and would not be a menace, did not the leaders like M. Clemenceau influence the people of Germany by demands that Germany cannot meet. All that M. Clemenceau says only gives comfort to the element in Germany that would not pay anything."

Every time Ludendorff or Hindenburg make a speech in Germany, more harm than good—even for those of the allies who backed such resolutions, even to Germany, whom they were intended to save.

"Not Marching in Step"

There is no longer any united front or continuity of outlook. Before the vast problems to be regulated the allied representatives have only been able to put forward solutions that were no solutions at all, because they were unable to rise above themselves to look at the situation in general and to march straight in step and toward a common goal. These economic difficulties would have been surmounted if the allies had followed a policy of clearness and authority.

The instability, not to say incoherence, of the "principles" successively applied since 1920 have been the cause of the present chaos. Now the Commission of Reparations is all-powerful; now it is held in check or condemned to a purely clerical role. Without an allied protest, Russians and Germans, con-voked to co-operate in the work of general pacification, are permitted to sign the separate treaty of Rapallo under the very nose of the allies.

FRENCH SOCIALIST WHO SPEAKS HERE

JEAN LONGUET.

Longuet said, Clemenceau and Poincare see red and visualize another invasion. He scoffed at the idea of Germany arming for another war.

Says Germany Can't Make War

"A few thousand rifles discovered in a cellar—poof!" he exclaimed. "A nation cannot make war in this time without airplanes, huge guns and enormous equipment, all of which have been taken from Germany. With all its great equipment, Germany lost the war. Who, then, can say she would essay to make war with a few thousand rifles?"

France, he said, should renounce the larger part of its claims against Germany, and in that event America and England should cancel the obligations of France.

"America should understand this appeal," he said, "as it has responded to world-wide appeals in the past to aid suffering humanity. It would also be good business and would reduce profitably in trade to the United States. Order would be established should all the nations attempt a solution of the economic problems in a spirit of understanding, and prosperity for all would come again."

Rhineland Plan "Wicked"

"It is stupid and wicked for France to consider annexation of the left bank of the Rhine. That would only cause another war. We must not trample any peoples; we must have a league of peoples, not of governments—a league of representatives elected by the people to prevent war. Our present policy is one of jingoes, the goal of which is disaster."

"There is no danger of an attack by Germany unless, perhaps, the German people are inflamed beyond endurance by those who hate, denounce and humiliate."

There can be no permanent reconciliation of the peoples of Europe, Longuet declared, except through the exertion of the political strength of labor. This, he predicted, would be effected at the next elections in France, unless so much mischief is done by jingoes before that time as may cause a complete debacle.

POINCARÉ PUSHES NAVY TREATY

Urges Haste by Deputies' Committee in Making Report.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Dec. 5.—Steps were taken by Premier Poincaré yesterday to hurry parliamentary consideration of the Washington naval accord. The Premier summoned M. Leygues, president of the Foreign Affairs Commission of the Chamber of Deputies, and urged him to endeavor to hasten his committee's report, which, after long delay, has been further retarded by the sudden resignation of Georges Mandel, who was entrusted with formulating the report.

M. Leygues told the Premier that the committee would appoint another reporter. He assured M. Poincaré that there would be no unnecessary delay in finishing the report.

ALLIED PREMIERS ADVISED TO BE TOLERANT IN COMING DELIBERATIONS BY HARVEY

Ambassador Calls Conference Most Important Since Peace Meeting and Warns That America May Not Approve Decisions.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch. (Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Publishing Co., Inc., New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Ambassador Harvey at a dinner of the American Circle of the Lyceum Club last night advised the allied premiers, who meet here Saturday for a highly important debt and reparations discussion, "not to come to decisions in the spirit of hate, but in the spirit of tolerance."

"Though America may not be able to influence those decisions, she may not tolerate them," he added warningly. "Col. Harvey characterized the meeting as 'the most important since the Paris peace conference.'"

"If the heads of the allied nations who have just received mandates from their peoples for this meeting, are not able to settle questions at the London meeting, how on earth are minor officials and under-strappers going to settle them at the Brussels conference?" he asked. Col. Harvey said he did not expect the conference would necessarily settle the problems it will consider, but he hoped it would reach decisions which would make solution possible.

The Ambassador led up to these statements with a most gloomy picture of the present state of Europe. He compared the present situation to the fog of international discord which hung over Europe in the years immediately preceding the war.

"The condition of Europe," he continued, "has become so immeasurably worse in the last two years that I do not know what to make of it unless it means the darkness that comes just before dawn."

"The war is over so far as killing is concerned, but perhaps it is not over for the starving millions of people and breaking their spirit. If Europe has to go through another year like the last two, I do not know what will happen to it or any of us. The decisions of the coming conference will decide the fate of millions of people—millions, millions, millions."

Col. Harvey also spoke frankly and at length on the Irish situation. His cue was given by the Marchioness of Arden and Telfair, who in the course of a speech proposing his health, had said: "This week Ireland is entering on new relations with Great Britain and the world. I hope this new relation will result in drawing Britain and America closer together."

In reply the Ambassador said: "The Irish question, which was a running sore of Anglo-American relations for so long is healed." He also said he felt things were getting better in Ireland, and that peace would come, but whether he was right or wrong, he added, "England had made such a generous offer to Ireland that the Irish question was closed and would remain closed."

"When stable government is established there will be at least 18 trust companies in America, which will be willing to finance Ireland," he declared, explaining they would do it, not only because of sentiment, but as sound business.

His speech was all delivered in most serious tones and he concluded by saying he hoped the audience would think over what he had said and do their best to see the questions he had mentioned were settled in the right way.

The Ambassador reached London just in time for dinner from Manchester, where he left Mrs. Harvey seriously ill.

The meeting of the Allied Premiers in London, fixed for the week end, will set the stage for the Brussels conference beginning Dec. 15, which with new British and Italian Premiers in attendance may develop into the most important meeting of its kind since Versailles.

Lord D'Abernon, British Ambassador to Germany, has arrived in London from Berlin and conferred with foreign officials concerning the latest developments.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN VISITS PARIS

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Dec. 5.—The visit here of Alanson B. Houghton, American Ambassador to Germany, has aroused considerable interest in French circles.

Although he denies there is any political significance to his trip, it is asserted in some quarters that his conversations with Ambassador Herick and Roland W. Boyden, American observer with the reparations commission, may provide a common ground upon which the French and Germans can agree in regard to the reparations question.

It is known that Houghton has been strongly impressed by the international situation of Germany and the declarations of the Germans that if they are able to live through the winter, it will be with much suffering, some starvation, and with certain political collapse by midsummer unless the French agree to a long moratorium during which the mark may be stabilized.

MELLON TERMS ATTACK BY WISCONSIN GOVERNOR UNJUST

Treasury Secretary Says Criticism Can Be Understood Only as Appeal to Class Prejudice.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Replying yesterday to an address by Gov. Blaine of Wisconsin, before a meeting of Progressives Saturday, Secretary Mellon declared the Wisconsin Governor "distorts my statement and endeavors to portray an injurious situation which does not exist," with reference to the collection of incomes and surtaxes on excess profits.

"Criticism of public officials and of their administration," said Secretary Mellon, "is commendable and useful to the people where there is ability and ineffective service in the conduct of office. But when wholly unjustifiable, and without any basis of truth, it is harmful, as in this instance, and can only be understood as an appeal to class prejudice in a selfish effort to obtain some political capital."

DAVIS REPLIES TO PROPONENTS OF 'BARS DOWN' IMMIGRATION

Workmen Could Have Been Admitted by Thousands, but Are Not Coming, He Says.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Secretary Davis of the Labor Department, on his return yesterday from a two-months' trip through the West, issued a statement assailing arguments advanced by proponents of the proposal to let down the immigration bars.

At any time since the present law was put in effect, the Secretary said, workmen "which have up to the past two decades made up the bulk of our immigration, could have been admitted by the thousands. They did not seek admission. They are not coming to America. In the last fiscal year less than one-half of the quotas that could be admitted under the law have come from England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Germany."

wished to abolish all rivalry for supremacy, and we seem to have reached so different a situation!

We would seem to have abolished military imperialism only to be erecting in its stead an economic imperialism. We are happily not yet descended so far, but the economic chaos of these last years, the disorder of the exchanges, tend to give to the richer nations a hegemony no less perilous to themselves than to others. That is where we have arrived—at a most critical crossroads.

Are the peoples, after so noble a showing, going to allow themselves to slip into a ferocious and absolute egotism? Has not commercial domination provoked as many wars as the domination of arms? Either this will happen or else, remembering the sacrifices made for a common ideal, will civilized men make the further indispensable effort toward the re-erection of the ruin, even if they have to show self-denial in the process?

In that case there would be more liberty in the world and less threats of war, and we can visit the tombs of our dead without shame, for they will be satisfied.

Too True, Old Chap, Too True!
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A visitor from England I would register a protest against your prohibition which does not prohibit. However, the liquor sold in almost every city I have visited is the poorest quality—often nauseating. Why do you not have real prohibition, or if liquor is sold, as it is now, why do you not have some Government supervision of quality or pure food standard? While in Great Britain the opinion prevailing is that American prohibition is an experiment, to be finally adopted if found expedient, I find it is an enacted law, not enforced, and derided by the general public. The result is infinitely worse than the open sale of unlimited quantities of liquor in England, where the liquor is not adulterated and poisoned and immature.

If one there be so injudicious as to become intoxicated, he may be up and about shortly; here the unfortunate is so dazed and stupefied that he must go to the hospital; perhaps to remain for days, so vile are the poisonous compounds sold promiscuously by bootleggers and drink parlor.

Yet your Government would not allow pure ale, Scotch or Irish whisky or porter to legally be sold. Your bootleggers, fountains and saloons sell poisonous stuff instead, colored red and called whisky. It seems that all the various liquor sellers want to know is if you are not a member of the Government prohibition enforcement squad. And I know of one Government enforcement officer taking a bribe to release a whisky seller he caught in the act of making a sale.

Most of your citizens say they are not in favor of prohibition. Many say openly it was never wanted by the majority, yet you pretend it is a law and do not enforce it. And you pretend to have a government by the people!

It does not appear that your Government or your people are sincere on the prohibition issue. The Government is deceiving her citizens and the citizens are deceiving the Government.

The Klan's Erudition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
IN reply to the letter of Raphael Kahn, so you think the Klan needs educating. I suppose you don't know they have some of the well educated men in the country in the Klan. There is men that sits in the Capital at Washington, D. C., that belongs to the Klan. You would be surprised to know who is behind this grand Organization. You are talking about the Klan of people there is in Oklahoma, why these people in Oklahoma have sense enough to uphold their race and their color. If you ever come down in Oklahoma, be sure and don't say anything about the American people. You get by with here as there ain't many here.

Calling Car Stops.

AS a stranger, I would like to know if it would not be the proper thing for your street car conductors to call out stations. After the sun goes down you cannot read the stations after you pass Grand avenue on account of the street being insufficiently lighted.

J. METTENTHAL.

Smoking Dr. Hadwen Out.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I FEEL that the Letters From the People Column may prove an excellent means of educating the public and I therefore take the liberty of answering the letter of F. D. B. in Wednesday's paper. F. D. B. asks: "Why should he (Dr. Hadwen) be asked to contribute funds to what is at best a wild goose chase, when all the so-called medical authorities, with their vivisection, admit they know no cure for cancer?"

F. D. B. does not know the whole story. We are not asking Dr. Hadwen to contribute his $3000. We are demanding, insisting and coercing him to do it. We are attempting to "smoke him out," even in spite of the fact that the chiropractors of Denver are quoting him at length to show why they are opposing the vaccination in that city.

Our question is still not answered. Who wished him on us, with his wealth of misinformation? Until we can locate the parties who are willing to assume the responsibility we are obliged to dedicate our efforts to Hadwen himself. It is fitting that he should be well known.

The last paragraph from Herbert Spencer might be sent to Dr. Hadwen to paste in his hat. (If, indeed, he wears one after knowing full well the origin of felt) and F. D. B. would unwittingly contribute to a suffering public if the fact itself will register.

AUGUSTUS G. POHLMAN.

WAR WARNINGS.

Pleading for adequate preparedness for war by means of an efficient regular army, military reserves and training camps for young men, Gen. Pershing, in his Chamber of Commerce speech, warned the country of the possibility of war. Calling attention to wars and preparation for war in Europe he said no one could tell when a war would be started in which we would be forced to participate. In the absence of guarantees against war he did not pretend to say when another war would come, but it would come. We have engaged in a major war without any aggression on our part, but for principle, every 20 years, and there is no guarantee that the record will not be continued.

Gen. Pershing's warning emphasizes the predictions of three public men of distinction and world-wide fame in one day. In the Sunday Post-Dispatch Clemenceau, H. G. Wells and Senator Borah gave warning of another war. It was a remarkable and sinister symposium of predictions of possible disaster.

Clemenceau in his St. Louis speech, depicting the terrible conditions in Europe and urging us to lend our strength and influence to the stabilizing of Europe and the guaranteeing of peace, said, ominously: "You may have to come; take care it is not too late."

H. G. Wells, painting a vivid picture of the collapse of our system of civilization in Russia, Austria, Hungary and Poland, and the paralysis which is creeping westward, spoke of the probability of war—"another war to end war."

Senator Borah, speaking in Boston and pleading for the recognition of Russia and the elimination of fear and suspicion between nations as a means of averting war, said that within two years the situation in the Near East may bring on war.

How can we hope to escape the consequences of the collapse of the existing system of industry and trade and commercial exchange which has ruined Eastern Europe, is now ruining Germany, threatening France and Italy and closing the industries of Great Britain, if the paralysis is not quickly checked?

How can we hope to escape participation if another world war grows out of the misery and turmoil of Europe?

These warnings are not idle words. They are based upon actual conditions which invariably, and with far less cause, have led to war and increased disaster.

The warning, in plain language, is this: If we do not help to obtain sound peace settlements, to re-establish the falling system of industry and trade and maintain peace; if we do not use our great strength and potential influence to assure peace, we will have to use our wealth and manpower for our own defense and safety in a world again at war.

Gen. Pershing, therefore, in urging reasonable measures of preparedness through the training of citizen officers and soldiers and through the maintenance of a merchant marine, reasons well. Secretary Denby is right in saying that we must have a navy second to none.

There is, however, a better way—an immeasurably less costly way—to assure our safety and prosperity. That is to join hands with other nations in rehabilitating war-stricken countries, stabilizing exchange, adjusting international disputes and guaranteeing peace.

The alternatives of preparing for war and suffering the cost and disaster of war or averting war by international co-operation are before us.

"It ought not to be difficult to find husbands or helpmates for these women," said a palace functionary referring to the 150 deserted wives of the Sultan. That all depends, of course, on the Turkish national spirit.

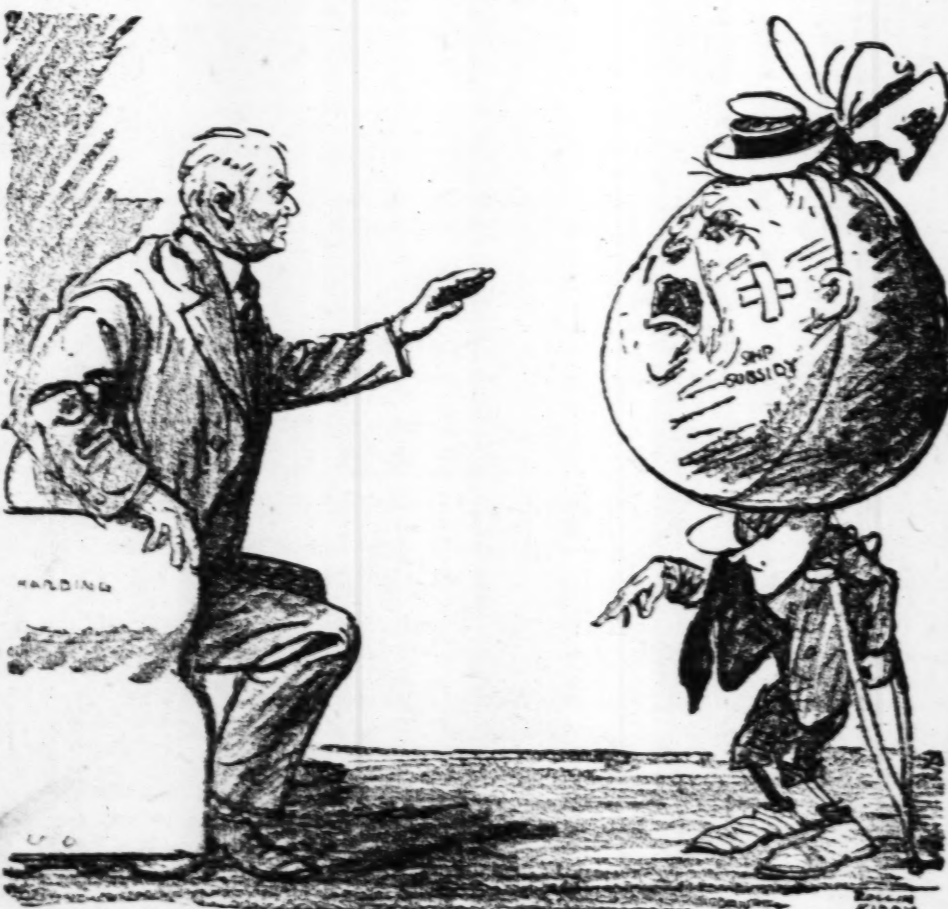

DAUGHERTY'S REPLY.

For one whose record in office is impeccable, according to his statement, Mr. Daugherty is unduly concerned over the character and motives of those who have moved to have him impeached. The public may have its opinion of the Attorney-General, but before opinion becomes knowledge or is reversed it must wait and see whether the charges made against him can be proved. What Mr. Daugherty says does not persuade opinion in his favor.

Representative Keller, who brings the charges, is little known outside of his own State or city. Samuel Untermyer is known all over the United States. And the fact that he has attacked public officials for 30 years is not necessarily against him. There are public officials who need attacking, and the Attorney-General may be one of them. Samuel Untermyer, however, is not.

DIRTY WORK BY THE FARM BLOC GANG.

notwithstanding he is a rich corporation lawyer, has behind him a record of public service; he holds liberal views on public questions and now represents what the Attorney-General refers to as "radicals." A dignified denial, with citation of facts to be used in his defense, would have been much more convincing of Mr. Daugherty's innocence than his counter attack on the character and motives of his assailants.

THE BUTLER NOMINATION.

The nomination of Pierce Butler of St. Paul for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court was not confirmed in the extra session of Congress, because of objections by Senators La Follette and Norris to immediate consideration. The nomination will now come before the regular session, which will enable both opponents and supporters of the nominee to be heard.

When the hearings are concluded the public will know a great deal more about Mr. Butler than it does now. To that information the public is entitled. The responsibility and power of this office are great—in some respects incalculable. It would seem as if a man qualified for such a trust would necessarily have made himself a national figure. No such claim can be made for Mr. Butler, who, previous to his nomination, had only a State reputation, which was not entirely favorable.

Political considerations have for a long time influenced these appointments and probably will continue to do so. It is well, for instance, in our system of party government to maintain a certain party balance in the Supreme Bench, and other things being equal, there can be no sound objection to geographical considerations. The observance of such customs, however, does not compel the choice of an unknown attorney or one whose practice may have biased his judgment. Both parties and all sections of the country have men of national stature and sound training available for this place. From such a list a President should have no great difficulty in satisfactorily filling those vacancies.

America still is grateful, says Clemenceau. But saying it with armies is quite another matter.

VALIANT VAL THE TRUST BUSTER.

Valentino told his troubles to a St. Louis audience Sunday night. The "highest-salaried cinema star" explained that he was not trying to terminate a distasteful contract for mercenary reasons. His stipend, apparently, is satisfactory—as, heaven knows, it should be—but the saccharine inanities in which he says he is being exploited have become irksome. The Apollo of the screen wants to do things worth while. He is possessed of a worthy, sincere, artistic ambition.

It is a formidable adversary he has tackled—a "Twenty-Million-Dollar Trust." The odds are against him, one would say offhand, but there are precedents that encourage and inspire. David, St. George, Dempsey, Senator-elect Ferris of Michigan have all in their way upset what the sport page calls the dope. Perhaps Rodolph will. If he does, what a movie drama can be fabricated from this battle, with Valiant Val as the handsomest hero that ever busted a trust!

Kemalist employees get 30 lashes for taking a drink. And still Americans complain of the high cost of booze.

THE LEGION AND CAPT. VON MUECKE.

Officers of the American Legion could be engaged in a more gracious and profitable occupation than that of attempting to prevent the appearance of Capt. von Muecke, former second in command of the German cruiser Emden, on the lecture platform in this country. Capt. von Muecke is a brave man and a modest one. His utterances have been in good taste. The proceeds of his tour go to the relief of war orphans—surely a cause with which the legion would not quarrel. The Department of Justice has investigated, and found nothing objectionable in his talks.

The cruise of the Emden was one of the most romantic and daring exploits of the war. It will go down in the history of all countries as one of the blazing epics of that great struggle. Americans, we believe, are chivalrous enough to honor high courage and devotion, even when displayed by the enemy.

Eight jurors have been chosen in four weeks of the Herrin trial. In another two, at this rate, there will be a full jury if the prosecution doesn't weaken.

TUG OF WAR.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McDanns

"AFTER all the Greeks did only what the Russians did in putting to death those who had led them to war," Mr. Antwine said.

"There are some respects in which the cases differ, but they are alike in their principal political phenomena. A people bitterly resenting war is always likely to seek vengeance against its war-makers. I wouldn't care to say that any people might not under equal provocation, do the same thing."

"This is barbarism, you say. It is truly; but is not war barbarism, and do not its crimes of violence surpass in horror those of a people resenting war and rendered vengeful by it?"

"Certainly. We somehow have had our reasoning faculties dulled by acclimation of war. We measure at Ekaterinburg. The slaughter of the Greek revolutionaries for what they have suffered was the firing squad outside of Athens."

"Thus we all stand with bloody hands, alike in our inability to rise above barbarism. What a headsplitting lot we are—how far short of what we might be and most headsplitters had thought to make us!" Mr. Antwine exclaimed.

We cannot see why any newspaper needs a column of humor when it can get news dispatches like the one from Beaver Falls, Pa., in the Globe-Democrat recently. The correspondent begins thus:

The rift that has been widening in the rifts at Geneva College over the failure of the variety football team to win glory on the gridiron has at last boiled over with a splash.

He also ends thus:

The "blow-out" has caused a sensation in the Beaver Valley, with sentiment largely in favor of Dr. Johnston and against Park.

Showing that whether it was a rift, as first indicated; an explosion, as subsequently implied; or an upheaval, as we are led to believe in the end, the writer's style survived it easily enough.

Oliver Herford, the humorist, was walking along a New York street when somebody suddenly gave him a terrific slap on the back and called out "Hello, Oliver." Herford turned round, calmly surveyed the male person who confronted him, and said, "I don't remember your face, but your manner is damned familiar."

Paradoxically, the Dyer bill was itself broached.

VICTOR WASN'T THERE.

Thursday about dusk I waited at Grand and Lucas for a Page car going west.

There was a great flock of boys and girls waiting at the same place.

They were returning from the Soldan-Central football game, and they were very noisy. Though defeated, the Soldan youngsters were not defeated.

They made the air ring with their yells, and the horns and cowbells made more din.

The Central victors, though in the minority as numbers, contributed their yells and swelled the racket.

I finally got inside a car which carried nearly a hundred of the Soldan representation.

All the way out Finney and Page avenues these future men and women kept up the roar. The other passengers enjoyed it very much, and some of the elders even joined in.

It was good to see this spirit of loyalty to a school which had just gone down in defeat.

No one seemed to think it was anything to occasion fault-finding.

And there wasn't a Victor Miller there to see evil in this outburst of boyish and girlish exuberance.

The MIRROR
PUBLIC OPINION

PIERCE BUTLER'S NOMINATION.

From the New York World.

POPULAR resentment against the nomination of Pierce Butler for the Supreme Court is based on the belief that they are removed from the life of the people that have lost all contact with it. Almost every injury is done to these courts by the intimate use of the equity power in labor disputes of which the Daugherty injunctions are the ripest examples. The judiciary is the most and most flexible branch of the Government consequently the least capable of bearing the brunt of all this industrial strife in which ability is essential to a settlement. The courts were once enough long ago to remove from the labor quarrels from the jurisdiction of the courts. That cannot be said done under the Constitution of the United States and hence we have again reached the point which the entire judiciary system is on the defensive against the militant crusaders who determined to overthrow it.

In those circumstances a President cannot too cautiously about his appointments to the Supreme Court and the Senate cannot accept his appointments too closely.

Mr. Butler may be a most capable man, may hold within him the possibility of a great Judge, but his nomination means that the great mass of the American people have never heard of him until the White House announced his appointment and all they learned of him since is that he has been a successful corporation lawyer in a commercial corporation law and corporate matters which bred a new and very aggressive industry.

It ought to have been possible at this time for Mr. Harding to select an associate justice of the Supreme Court whose name alone would have guaranteed the country would immediately have heard of his qualifications. A justice of the peace's qualifications. This is a case in which nothing and that can in no way strengthen the confidence in the greatest of all public institutions.

This does not necessarily imply that the nomination of Mr. Butler should be rejected by the Senate, but it does imply that the Senate should take nothing for granted in measuring Mr. Butler's qualifications. This is a case in which the burden of proof is on the appointment. It is enough to show that there is nothing wrong with his record and that can in no way strengthen the confidence in his confirmation. There is something to be said in favor of his confirmation, and thus far nobody has said it. Can the Senate?

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

The Boston "Tea Party" Caused Parliament to Pass What Colonists Called the "Intolerable Acts."

The Colonists Were Notified of the Five Acts.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

KING GEORGE, the first of the Hanoverian Princes, who was an Englishman by birth and by training and by personal preference, was greatly outraged when he heard of the affair in the harbor of Boston.

"At last," His Majesty said, "the die is cast and the colonies must either triumph or submit, but if we stand firm the colonists will undoubtedly be very meek."

Lord North, who for more than three years had been the King's chief Minister, woke up from his usual slumbers to express his indignation in severe terms and then went back to sleep. And other members of the Government declared that the Boston "tea party" had been the work of a tumultuous and riotous rabble which ought to attend to their business and their shops without troubling themselves with politics of which they understood nothing.

No doubt these things sounded very well when expressed with due seriousness in a London parlor. But across the broad ocean they failed to make a noticeable impression. The more concrete laws and regulations, however, which an indignant Parliament passed in March of the year 1774 were not so easily laughed out of court. They consisted of five separate acts which the Americans called with a great deal of truth, "Intolerable Acts." The first of these absolutely closed the port of Boston to all commerce both with England and all foreign countries.

The second one revoked the Charter of Massachusetts of the year 1691 and declared among other things that the old and familiar town meetings could not be held without the consent of the royal Governor. The third gave the royal officers in the colonies
the right to send those who were accused of killing revenue officers to England for trial that justice might be done and the culprit might be duly hanged. A fourth act legalized the quartering of troops in the towns and villages of Massachusetts, and exposed the people of that colony to all the annoyances of a hired military class.
A fifth measure, the so-called Quebec act, gave religious tolerance to the Catholic population of Canada (to the great horror of the Puritan neighbors in New England) and extended the boundaries of the province of Quebec southward until this region took in the greater part of the wilderness east of the Ohio River.

Only one man spoke out against these laws. That was Edmund Burke, who afterwards gained fame as the enemy of the French revolution. But Parliament was in no temper to listen to his apologies. What had been done in America deserved quick punishment and by almost unanimous consent the five bills were passed. Four weeks later duly autographed copies reached the shores of Massachusetts. They came accompanied by Gen. Gage, who brought with him the first contingent of that army that was to bring the "rebels" to terms.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

lection of historical facts. Valuable for reference or for supplement-

CAMPAIGN HERE COST DEMOCRATS $24,546

Report of City Committee Filed With Recorder of Deeds Shows Surplus of $237.

The Democratic City Committee today filed with the Recorder of Deeds its report of expenditures in the city election of Nov. 7. The total of receipts shown was $24,546, and the disbursements $24,309, leaving a balance of $237.45.

Assessments on candidates yielded $6950, and the Democratic State Committee contributed $1000. M. C. H. Arendes, candidate for collector, gave $500, and the nine candidates for circuit judgeships gave $500 each. Other candidates gave smaller amounts, and George Hruska's $400 was returned to him after the Supreme Court decided that his name should not go on the ballot as a candidate for Assessor. The office was held to be appointive, not elective.

Some Large Contributions.
Sam Lazarus is credited with a contribution of $1000. Contributors of $500 each were S. W. Pondus, W. F. Carter, J. C. Harvey, Jesse A. McDonald and H. S. Priest. Democratic lawyers of the Bar Association collectively gave $2000, and some individual givers of $500 each were Harry Jemel, Murray Carleton, M. J. Kinney and W. T. Jones. The $250 contributors included Bennett Clark, Marion C. Early, Ralph Coale, George H. Moore, Edward Feehan and Thomas Sheehan. S. S. Bass gave $200, and D. G. Taylor, V. Lehman (as the name is recorded) and Edward F. Goltz $100 each. Goltz is Democratic national committeeman.

The committee's expenditures included $4180 for a precinct canvass, $12,350 at the polls on election day, at $2 a precinct, and an additional distribution of $172 each to ward committeemen, or $4800 in all. The Republican City Committee has not yet filed its report. All the Republican local ticket was elected.

Republicans Spent $48,000 in State Campaign—Deficit About $4000.
The Republican State Committee expended approximately $48,000 in the campaign in an effort to elect a Republican United States Senator, Republican Supreme Judges, Congressmen, State Superintendent of Schools, State Senators and Representatives, according to the official statement of receipts and expenditures filed yesterday in the Recorder's office.

The committee reported receipts of $44,223.27. The amount paid out to date is $29,123.27. To meet unpaid bills amounting to approximately $9000, the committee has $2333.27. E. B. Clements of Marion, chairman of the committee, said there would be a deficit of between $4000 and $5000.

One of the principal sources of revenue for the organization was an assessment of State officials and State employees. Elective officials contributed 2 per cent of one year's salary and employees 1 per cent. More than $15,000 was derived from that source.

The National Republican Senatorial Committee sent $1500 to be used in Missouri. The largest individual contributor was Senator Spencer, who gave $600. Dr. Clements, Mrs. Besse Parker Brueggeman, John S. Leary and Dwight F. Davis contributed $500 each, and Deputy State Finance Commissioner D. W. Ross and A. J. Hellmich gave $400 each. There were many contributions of from $100 to $250.

The Democratic State Committee last week filed its report in the Recorder's office in Carthage, showing its total receipts to have been $45,784.13, and its total expenditures $42,255.25.

HOME FINANCING INSTITUTION BOUGHT BY INDIANA COMPANY

United Home Builders Interest Sold by William Sacks and W. M. Webb.
The United Home Builders of America, a home financing institution, which was brought to St. Louis from Dallas, Tex., about a year ago, after William Sacks had bought a half interest in it, and which has offices in the United Home Building, formerly the Holland Building, which it owns at 211 North Seventh street, has been purchased by the Hawkins Home Mortgage Co. of Portland, Ind. The purchase price was not made public.

W. M. Webb, president of the United Home Builders, said today that he and Sacks had sold their holdings to the Hawkins interests, but that he had been employed by the new owners to facilitate as president. The company will continue to operate under its present name, Webb said, and there will be no difference in its policy.

The Hawkins company, of which Morton S. Hawkins is president, is nearly 150 years old, and announces its assets are more than $2,000,000. The company operates to loan, guarantee and banks in various cities of the Middle West. The last financial statement of the United Home Builders, issued last October, showed assets of about $2,500,000.

BOBBY WALLACE GETS DIVORCE

Roderick J. (Bobby) Wallace, former shortstop for the St. Louis Browns, today was granted a divorce by a court from Mrs. Mabel June Wallace, 14 years old, an actress of Hollywood, Cal.
They were married Aug. 8, 1906, and separated March 18, 1920. Wallace alleged desertion. He charged that Mrs. Wallace told him she did not love him and that she urged him to get a divorce. She entered her appearance but did not contest the action.

Visiting Hours—Special Notice

Because of almost continuous broadcasting during the day, inspection of radio plant must be limited to the period between 3 and 4 p. m., and when special tests are under way in this hour, the transmission room is also closed to visitors. Call at reception room, second floor, Post-Dispatch building.

The hundreds of thousands of persons who are members of the K S D audience must have smiled last night when Gen. John J. Pershing concluded his radio address by thanking his attentive and intelligent audience.

"It is a pleasure," said Gen. Pershing, "to speak to so large and so intelligent an audience of persons who do their own thinking."

Gen. Pershing's speech was on preparedness. He explained in the beginning that he was urging upon the people of America the wisdom of being ready for war, not because he expected war next week or next year, but because he did not want his country to undergo again, in the event there ever should come another war, the experiences of the World War. The preparation he advocated was a standing army sufficient to serve as a nucleus of the fighting forces of America, an adequate National Guard and a properly trained and equipped reserve corps. These three combined, he said, would enable this country to take its part in any future conflict which might arise much more speedily and in better condition than it ever had been able to do in the past.

He also strongly endorsed the Student Officers' Training Corps, which has been established in all the large colleges and universities of the United States, not only for the military training thus obtained, but for the fine physical education it affords.

"This preparedness is desired," said Gen. Pershing, "not because we are militarists, for we are not. Every one of the 5,000,000 Americans who served in the World War abhors war much more than many persons who never saw it and therefore do not know its horrors. Preparedness is not militarism. It is insurance, national insurance, for public safety against a possible outside aggressor."

Gen. Pershing and his staff arrived at Station K S D direct from the banquet of the Military Order of the World War. The commander of the St. Louis camp of that order, Col. Albert T. Perkins, introduced the General to his radio audience and Edward Hadden, who was chairman of the committee for welcoming returning soldiers, which welcomed Gen. Pershing home to his native

State when he returned from France, made a short preliminary talk. Interesting Concert. The musical program last night was highly interesting and artistic. Two singers—Mrs. Myrtle C. Gessler and Mrs. Nellie F. Peters—soprano and contralto, respectively, presented a concert, assisted by Mrs. Grace A. Leland, pianiste, and Dr. G. A. Heldman, flutist. The songs all were well chosen and were splendidly sung. Compliments, both telephonic and telegraphic, were received from near and distant points. Another speaker whose talk was very much appreciated was Lieutenant Colonel H. C. Boyden of Chicago, a civil engineer of national repute, who spoke on "The Story of a Magic Powder." This magic powder is cement and the story was a description in the form of a fairy tale of the production of this powder from mining it out of the earth to its place in the buildings and bridges and roadways of the world. Tonight's program will combine dance music with songs, and there will be an address by Dr. J. S. Jensen.

Cranberry Butter is the most healthful and delicious spread on bread for the youngsters.

Cranberry Butter

Three pints cranberries, 1/2 cup water, 2 cups sugar. Cook the cranberries and water until the skins of the fruit are broken; then press through a sieve, and cook this pulp until it becomes quite thick; add the sugar and cook for 1/2 hour over a very gentle fire, stirring constantly. When slightly cool turn into jars, and cover closely. This makes a delicious and healthful spread on hot biscuits, bread, buttered toast, or cake.

Serve Cranberry Sauce as a relish with beef.

"Bringing Mankind and Music Together"

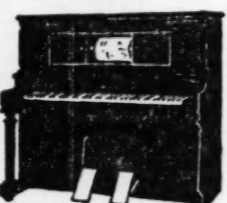

That is the mission of the great international Aeolian organization, the world's foremost producers of musical instruments. To carry the message of music across the seven seas into all corners of the world where civilization has penetrated has been the royal privilege of this great organization. To bring mankind and music together the means of music must be brought within the reach of all mankind. This the economy of vast production has helped make possible.

"Aeolian" on a musical instrument means not alone quality but a known price and an unequalled measure of value. A home without music is a home without life's greatest influence. And no home need be without music. For there is an Aeolian instrument within the reach of every home.

The Duo-Art
Reproducing
Piano

A marvel of modern times—a wonderful instrument that reproduces the actual playing of great pianists—the playing of Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, Ganz, Grainger and dozens of others who record for the Duo-Art and for it alone. Obtainable in these famous pianos: Steinway, Weber, Steck, Wheelock, Aeolian and Stroud; the Duo-Art is priced from $695. Terms 10% down, balance in two and one-half years; your old piano taken in exchange.

The Pianola

"Pianola" is a trademarked name and the Pianola is exclusively an Aeolian product. There is a vast difference between the genuine Pianola and an ordinary player-piano. The Pianola's playing is not mechanical, but is marked by wonderfully artistic effects. You can get a Styvesant Pianola, Aeolian-made and Aeolian-guaranteed, for only $445—10% down, two and one-half years to pay, and your old piano taken in exchange.

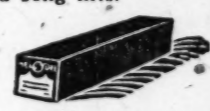

The Vocalion

The famous phonograph with that exclusive feature, the Graduola! The phonograph that gives you a share in creating music. Hear the Vocalion—try using the Graduola before you buy your phonograph. Cabinet style Vocalions, $45 to $300. Art styles, $175 to $2000. Convenient payment terms.

The Vocalion
Red Record

As distinctive in musical quality as it is in color. Vocalion Red Records can be played on any standard phonograph. Get the new ones here the first of every month—also the special mid-month releases of dance-hits and song hits.

Melodee Music
Rolls

Hand played by the Kingspins of syn-copation—Roy Barty, Cliff Hess, Phil Ohman, Frank Banta, Henry Lango. If you want dance music that goes right to your feet, you'll get it in Melodee Rolls. They're only $1 each. Bring in your old rolls—we'll allow you something for them.

The Steinway
Piano

It is only the presumptuous or the ignorant who dispute the supremacy of the Steinway. Its leadership is acknowledged by those whose judgment carries greatest weight. Since the day of Liszt all truly great pianists have chosen to use the Steinway. It is rightly called "the instrument of the immortals." Yet the Steinway is within reach of ordinary mortals. You can get a Steinway for as little as $875. Terms—10% down, balance in two years; and an allowance for your old piano.

Other Good
Pianos

It is our good fortune to have as complete and varied a line of Pianos as anyone could wish to select from. Grands, small grands and uprights in ebony, mahogany, oak and other desired finishes. Besides the inimitable Steinway, we have the famous Weber Piano, the Premier Baby Grand, the Steck, the Stroud, the Wheelock and other standard makes. Convenient payment terms on any make or model.

that of Young as Police Chief followed charges by a negress that she had been harassed by police because she had been a Government witness in the naturalization proceedings of Henry L. (Hank) Weeke, a Republican leader. It was alleged at the trial that Young had virtually countermanded Police Board orders to Capt. William Stinger, then head of the morality squad. Young was reduced to a Captain after having been Chief for nine years. He refused to accept the captaincy and resigned. He is 66 years old and is now in the coal business. He is remarkably active for his years.

President Brockman of the board said that the visit of the Governor here tomorrow "had nothing to do with any rumors of changes in the board." He said that his mission here was merely to attend a circus given under the auspices of the Shriners at the Coliseum.

Successor Not Mentioned.

No successor to Young, in the event his name is withdrawn from the Senate's consideration, has yet been mentioned. However, politicians say that it will be a man named by Brockman and one who would be in harmony with his plans and ideas.

SERVICES FOR BARTHEL TODAY

Funeral services for John D. Barthel, 57 years old, president of the Barthel-Duesenberg Piano Co., who died Saturday, are at 2 p. m. today at Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, of which he was Sunday school superintendent, vice chairman of the board of directors and chairman of the school board.

Barthel was born in St. Louis and began his career as a parochial school teacher, studying music while so employed. He became principal of the Zion School, and also organist and choir leader, and was largely instrumental in developing the Concordia Seminary chorus. In 1911 he resigned to organize the Concordia Music House, of which the name later was changed to the present one. Interment will be in Utica, Mich., Barthel's former home. He leaves his widow, a stepson, two brothers and three sisters.

INJURED FLEEING FROM HUSBAND

Mrs. Mary Klecka, 39 years old, of 2209 South Tenth street, fractured her left ankle and sprained her wrist at 1:30 a. m. today when she jumped from a rear window of her home to escape from her husband, William J. Klecka, 38, of 1126 St. Ange avenue, from whom she is separated. She was taken to the city hospital.

Mrs. Klecka told the police her husband appeared at her home and demanded admission, and when she refused, threatened to use a revolver he said he had. She said he kicked in the door and that she jumped from the window into an alley, a drop of 10 feet. Klecka was arrested in the house and charged with peace disturbance. No weapon was found in his pockets.

YOUNG LIKELY TO BE REMOVED FROM THE POLICE BOARD

Former Chief Said to Have Incurred Displeasure of Brockman Because of Allegiance to Miller.

William Young, former Chief of Police, will be removed shortly as a member of the Police Board, according to Republican politicians, who say that the matter is to be discussed by Philip Brockman, president of the board, and Gov. Hyde, when the Governor arrives in St. Louis tomorrow.

Young was appointed for a term of only one year originally. That term expired on Jan. 1, 1922. At that time Gov. Hyde reappointed him for four years, but the State Senate was not in session and the appointment was never confirmed. The Governor has the privilege of withdrawing a name before it has been acted upon by the Senate.

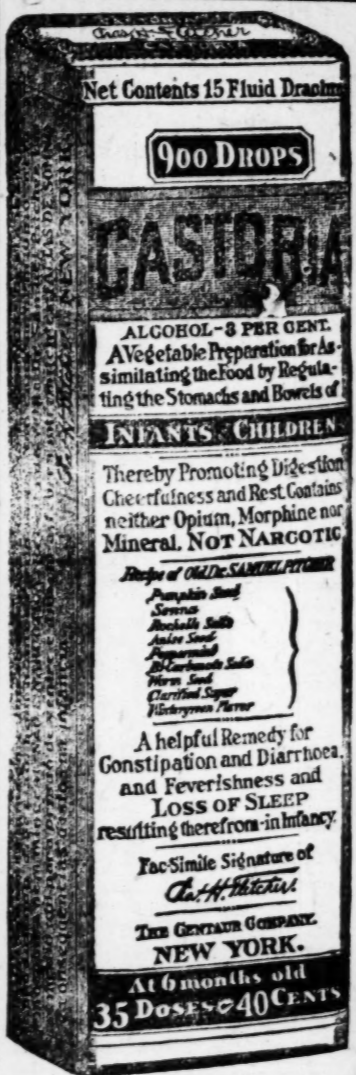

Cause of the Friction.
Commissioner Young is said to have incurred the displeasure of members of the board by his reported allegiance to Victor J. Miller, treasurer of the board, who was deposed as president following his charge that immoral clubs of girls and boys existed among Soldan High School students. Young and Miller are reported to have taken the same stand on several measures which came before the board and, according to politicians, the Governor has been considering the withdrawal of Young's name from the Senate's consideration when it meets with the opening of the Legislature. Miller was confirmed for four years at the original appointment of the board on Feb. 11, 1921. Young's one-year appointment was also confirmed at that time.

When Gov. Hyde appointed Young he gave out a statement in which he said that he believed that the naming of a "practical policeman" would lend a balance to the direction of the police organization. However, it was agreed in political circles at the time that Young's appointment was also made with a view of vindicating him in the eyes of the public. He had previously been removed as Chief of Police by the preceding Democratic board.

Some Cases Reopened.
The proceedings at the time were questioned by Republicans and when the present board was appointed it reopened several cases which had resulted in dismissals by the Democratic board. Three men who had thus been discharged were reinstated.

The trial of Young as Police Chief followed charges by a negro that

OFFICIAL COUNT SHOWS
REED WON BY 44,255

Lee, Democrat, Polled 6045
More Votes Than Superintendent of Schools Baker.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 5.—The official canvass of the vote in the general election, begun yesterday in Secretary of State Becker's office, shows Senator Reed was re-elected by a plurality of 44,255.

The returns so far canvassed show:

For the United States Senate: Reed, Democrat, 506,264; Brewster, Republican, 462,009; Brandt, Socialist, 7,119; Cox, Socialist-Labor, 870. Reed's plurality, 44,255.

For the Superintendent of Schools: Lee, Democrat, 488,853; Baker, Republican, 482,838. Lee's plurality, 6045.

For the Supreme Court, Division 1: Ragland, Democrat, 521,609; Elder, Republican, 438,131. Ragland's plurality, 82,954.

For the Supreme Court, Division 2: Walker, Democrat, 512,809; White, Democrat, 438,553; Hayward, Republican, 452,413; Higbee, Republican, 457,648. Walker's plurality over Hayward, 60,296; White's plurality over Higbee, 25,874.

The vote for the St. Louis Court of Appeals Judgeship was as follows: Daus, Democrat, 154,299; Biggs, Democrat, 153,064. Daus' plurality, 1235.

The count on the proposed constitutional amendments, referendum and initiative propositions has not been completed, but a cursory examination of the figures so far tabulated indicates that No. 3, the proposal to enable use of surplus motor vehicle license receipts for road maintenance, has carried, and possibly No. 2, which would change the qualification for voting to exclude aliens now voting on their first papers and strike the word male from the State Constitution.

The official tabulation shows, as did the unofficial returns, that 11 Democrats and five Republicans were elected to Congress from Missouri; and that 12 Democrats and five Republicans were elected to the State Senate. With the 17 holdover Senators, of whom seven are Democrats and 10 are Republicans, the Democrats will control the State Senate by four, as there will be 19 Democrats and 15 Republicans.

Count on Other Offices.

Mason & Hamlin

STRADIVARIUS
of Pianos

When Stradivarius made his violins, neither cost of production nor volume of output was his chief concern. His mind was absorbed in producing a masterpiece—His contribution to the art of violin playing.

The makers of the Mason & Hamlin Piano adhere to the same lofty ideals. If by putting into the Mason & Hamlin Piano a greater expenditure, it could be made a finer instrument they would unhesitatingly do so, and in rease its price accordingly. With them price is the last consideration—not the first.

It is impossible to convey in words an adequate idea of the surpassing tonal quality of the Mason & Hamlin Piano. Only an actual hearing can give a realization of its beauty.

We invite you to call and hear it.

COMPLETION OF HERRIN JURY SOON PREDICTED

Union Interest Now Centers About Coming Miners' Election.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MARION, Ill., Dec. 5.—For the first time since the beginning of the Herrin massacre trial, 12 talesmen spent the night under watch of court bailiffs, and the selection of a jury seems a probability in a few days. Eight of the talesmen have been finally accepted by both sides.

Union interest, however, now is centering around the coming miners' election on Dec. 12. In a signed statement issued by the eight defendants held in the county jail they demand the re-election of President Frank Farrington, who brought about the one per cent assessment on all miners' wages over the State for their defense.

Brundage Challenge Accepted.
In their statement they say that Attorney-General Brundage "has publicly challenged the Illinois mine workers to hold a secret referendum as to whether or not the miners' union would stand back of us boys in jail. Such a referendum will be held on the second Tuesday in December. Every union miner who believes that the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Brundage are attempting to railroad us boys to the penitentiary should come out that day and vote for Frank Farrington. You union men must get this one thing into your head. This Herrin prosecution is intended as the greatest blow ever dealt at unionism."

"Be of one mind in this issue and leave the steering of our ship to a man who has the backbone and brain power to get us across the angry sea raised up by labor-hating organizations through the State and country."

The statement is signed by Otis Clark, C. C. Howard, Leta Mann, Philip Fontanetta, James Brown, Jesse H. Childers and Bert Grace.

Consents to Son's Marriage.
Otis Clark was excused from the courtroom long enough on Monday afternoon to give his consent to the marriage of his 20-year-old son to Miss Freda Moore of McLeansboro. The ceremony was performed late Monday evening, but was not witnessed by Clark. The newlyweds will live in Herrin in a house which Clark was building when he was arrested on the murder indictment and which the carpenters completed for him.

The morning examination of jurors was fruitless. Six men were examined and although three were tentatively held at noon, there is slight probability that any will be retained.

De Palma in Jail for Speeding.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MADERA, Cal., Dec. 5.—Ralph de Palma, veteran automobile racing driver, spent last night in the county jail here. De Palma is serving a 10-day sentence imposed by Justice R. G. Cornell of Chowchilla for driving 70 miles an hour on the county highway. He was given two days to enable him to complete his racing season, and then reported.

She is a busy woman. Her children take up a good share of her time. She has other interests—clubs, charities. And a household. And still her friends say "she always looks as though she just stepped out of a band-box."

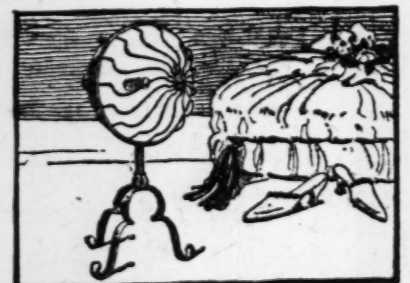

A simple matter, really—once you know the secret. It lies in the good use she makes of the Hotpoint Servants in her boudoir. Hotpoint Servants designed with keen insight into women's needs by the same Housekeeping Engineers who made her housework and cooking simpler and easier.

The Hotpoint Boudoir Set—the secret of her always crisp and dainty blouses and lingerie. A three pound iron, the Stand of which she uses to form a hot plate when a little hot water is needed quickly. A Curling Iron—heated in the place provided for it in the iron—comes with the set.

Her Hotpoint Curling Iron has the professional touch. The only electric curling iron that can give a true Marcel wave. The hair spreads out flat and even along the whole length of the iron—assuring a uniform wave. The heat is mild, even and continuous.

Drying her hair after it is washed is a matter of only a few minutes with the Hotpoint Hair Drier. Of course, she uses the Heater, too, to take the chill off the room in the Fall and for the extra cold days of Winter.

Lower Range of Industrials —Professional Market Indicated.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:
"Trading on the Stock Exchange
today continued to indicate the entirely professional character of the market. The morning was characterized by weakness in many issues which, in the case of some of the railroad shares, was acute. The events of the day, however, and particularly the Studebaker and Kennecott dividend declarations, served to encourage resistance in the industrial section of the list so that the last hour found considerable enhancement of the market. The evening up of commitments by the decline earlier in the day. The measure of recovery was hardly more than enough to change declines to irregularities, however. Neither did the course of the bond market inspire any idea that the public is in a mood to buy securities on a broad scale. Gilt-edged Government issues were fairly strong,
and the speculative descriptions, especially the railroad bonds, were lower.
The rate quoted for call money loans on the Stock Exchange was first fixed at 5 per cent but was advanced to 5 1/2 per cent early in the afternoon.

Sterling Is Strong.
"Strength in sterling, meanwhile,
continued to be the feature of the foreign exchange market. Permanent buying from this side of inclined to attribute partly to the carried pound up to a new high of $4.85. After sagging back to a cent the gain on the day itself amounted to 1 cent. That the advance is being maintained by American buying is indicated by a slight recession usually occurs at

The other Europeans opening here French francs lost 3/4 points to 63 1/2 cents, after having been slightly lower. Italian lire declined 9/16 points to 4.92 cents, and Swedish crowns were unchanged at 31 1/2 of a cent. A number of the former neutrals were, however, firm. Dutch guilders worked into new high ground at 37 3/8 cents and the Swiss krone likewise touching 27 1/2 cents.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder Bothers

Too much meat may produce uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble. The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys may act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to help neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, and nobody can make a mistake or taking a little occasionally to help to keep the kidneys clean and active. Drink plenty of water at all times.

What He Thinks

St. Louis, Mo., November 13, 1922.
Liberty Hospital Building Co., 4357 Delmar St.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:

Shortly after I purchased a certificate of stock in the Liberty Hospital Building Company, I fell and broke the femur of left leg and three bones in my right arm.

An ambulance came for me and I was taken to the Liberty Hospital. I had three doctors in charge of my case and was in the hospital for ten weeks.

I was not charged for physicians' services and received a 25% discount on my general hospital bill, saved at least $300.00 by having a $100.00 certificate.

Is there any form of insurance that compares with this? I think not. I cannot recommend this service too strongly. If I can be of service to you in any way, I shall be glad to do it.

With very best wishes, I remain,
Very truly yours,
(Signed) JOHN J. ROBERTSON

THREE MEN WHO DROVE TOWARD ST. LOUIS AFTER MURDER SOUGHT

Wealthy Farmer of Luebberting, Mo., Was Slain and Robbed While Wife Was Bound.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
UNION, Mo., Dec. 1.—The St. Louis police have been requested to look for three men who were seen riding in a Ford automobile along the Gravois road toward St. Louis shortly after Louis Bardot, 40 years old, a wealthy farmer of Luebberting, Mo., 20 miles from here, was murdered and robbed in front of his home Sunday night.

Bardot was called to his front door at 7 p. m., and a few minutes later his wife heard him call for help. She started to the front of the house but was stopped by two men who tied her hands and feet with rope and pushed her into a clothes closet.

After several minutes Mrs. Bardot succeeded in freeing her hands and hobbled to the front porch. She found her husband's body wrapped in a quilt in the front yard about eight feet from the porch. The quilt was tied about the body with a rope, and when it was removed Mrs. Bardot discovered that her husband's feet and hands were tied behind his back, his head pressed backward. There was a stab in his forehead, but it was not determined whether he was killed by a blow or smothered to death.

Bardot's watch, chain and ring were missing and his pocketbook was empty. He usually carried a large sum of money.

About eight years ago a relative was convicted of having robbed Bardot of $2000.

EIGHT REPUBLICAN WOMAN'S CLUB CANDIDATES WITHDRAW

Seven Received Low Votes in Primary, but One Was Third Highest of 15 Seeking Directorships.

Eight candidates for offices or directorships in the Republican Women's Club, nominated in a recent primary, have requested their names be withdrawn from the ballot to be submitted to club members in an election Dec. 28. Seven of them received a low vote in the primary, but were to be placed on the ballot, as the club rules require that three candidates be nominated for each office.

Mrs. Harry Hoffman, who received the third highest vote of 15 nominees for directorships, five to be elected, withdrew, stating she desired to devote her time to her duties as a member of the Republican City Committee.

Others who have withdrawn and the office for which nominated, are: Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price, president; Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson, first vice president; Mrs. W. R. Haight and Mrs. John H. Gillespie, third vice president; Mrs. Laura Edwards, fifth vice president; Miss Marie B. Ames, auditor; Mrs. F. B. Clarke, director. Mrs. Gillespie withdrew from the club.

LAST $1,000,000 OF COUNTY ROAD BONDS SELL AT 99

Remaining Portion of $3,000,000 Issue Bought by Kaufman-Smith-Emert Co.

The remaining $1,000,000 of the St. Louis County road bond issue of $3,000,000, voted Feb. 15, 1921, was sold today for slightly under 99, or $988,100, the successful bidder being the Kaufman-Smith-Emert Investment Co.

There were three other bidders. Smith-Moore Co., William R. Compson & Co. and Whitaker & Co., who offered various sums between $985,000 and $986,000. The high bid was accepted by Treasurer Eble and approved by the County Court.

The first $2,000,000 of the bonds was sold for something more than $1,900,000, market conditions having been adverse. The issue was delayed until 1919 by litigation. The bonds are dated Aug. 1, 1914, and mature Aug. 1, 1926. They bear interest at 4 1/2 per cent a year from date of actual issuance, and are in denominations of $100 and $1000. The projects on which the last bond money will be used have not been selected.

ST. CHARLES MAYOR PLANS CITIZENS' WATERWORKS INQUIRY

Names Committee to Report on "Shocking" Condition After Failure of Bond Issue Plan.

A citizens' committee to report on the "shocking" condition of the St. Charles city waterworks, was appointed at a Council meeting last night by Mayor May, after taxpayers last Saturday for the second time defeated attempts to improve the waterworks by failing to pass, by a two-thirds majority, a $2500 bond issue for new pumps and equipment.

Mayor May said the taxpayers seemed not to be sufficiently impressed with the report of an employed expert, made before the election, and so he would have a group of themselves investigate and report to the Council Jan. 7, in preparation for another election. The 100 horse-power pumps have a 150 horse-power life, according to H. W. Ostiek, in charge of the waterworks, and, therefore, are constantly out of repair. He said also that the boilers for purifying water are in poor condition.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—A revised contract between the Russian soviet government and Krupps, conceding the German firm large territories in Krupps recently declared it was impossible to execute their original contract because of the fall of the mark and the Russians threatened to sue. The revised contract reveals that Krupps got 75 per cent of the needed capital, through Leslie Urquhart, from British banks. This en-

What Are a Wife's Wages?

What Profession Requires More Skill and Labor and Ceaseless Vigilance Than "Housekeeping"?

By SOPHIE IRENE LOER.

A FEW days ago at a luncheon of the most prominent people in the city—women interested in civic work—the question of a wife's wages was discussed and there was considerable heated argument.

One woman deplored the fact that a married woman was rated legally and otherwise as one with "no profession."

"If there is any profession that requires skill and labor and never-ending vigilance, it is housekeeping, and it is high time that such a work was regarded as a profession," said one of the women.

"Quite so," echoed everybody present, and the question of a wife's wages waxed warm as it always does.

There was an ultra-feminist who insisted that a woman, no matter how many children she had, should earn money equally with her husband and contribute to the family's support. She cited the case of Sweden, which recently passed a law that a wife must contribute to the support of the family with her husband.

This is going equal rights one better. We are running away with our far-fetched notions when we get to the point of saying that a wife and mother of several children shall earn money as well.

What She'd Get.
If this were to come to pass, women would not be getting equal rights but unequal rights.

The minute woman is compelled not only to foster her family, but to finance it as well, that minute we are going back in the big scheme of equality. Woman would be handicapped and not elevated.

Such equal rights would be more wrongs than rights. Equal rights mean equal fights, and woman is not equally fitted to fight with man when she is a mother of children.

What is really desired and should be sought for is equal opportunity and equal protection.

Who shall say that a wife does not pay more in actual wages when she is taking care of her children than the man himself who earns the wages? Perhaps if he had to pay for it he might pay all of his wages and more to do the work that his wife is doing for the care of his family. The man would get the best of it in the game of life if his wife were forced to contribute to the upkeep of the home.

Up to the Woman.
Of course, there are many cases where a wife and her husband have time on her hands and wants to do something to supplant her husband's income, and is able to do it without detriment to her household. This is all well and good, and it is a matter of discrimination and desire upon the part of the woman. But to fix laws whereby she will not only bear the burden of children and homemaking, but also bring in a weekly pay envelope, is the very particular, that is going some. That is unequal and undesirable and very much to be deplored.

Woman is fast emerging from being a chattel, as she formerly was a chattel to her husband. And if such steps were taken, she would become the worst chattel—a chattel of civilization. She could not possibly do justice to herself, her children or her home.

There are thousands of women who are not home-makers. Their place is in business, side by side with man, and somebody else must make a home for such a woman. This is necessary and important, since the industrial fields have called woman from her former narrow sphere. Yet there are millions of women who, through years of attention to one thing—home-making—can do nothing else better, and why they should be reckoned as women without profession is an element that will not long wait for solution. Some day the courts will decide that she has earned wages in her profession, wages that should entitle her to an equal share in the finances of the home, and her husband should not ask her what she did with the last nickel he gave her.

What She Owes Self.
As it is now, each must settle such matters for himself and herself. As to the person in whose hands the money is in the bank, or who handles the pay envelope, that is something that can be settled by the couple only, and every man should stop to consider the work and worry of a wife in making ends meet and stretching a dollar until it is threadbare.

Her wages should be within reason in the way of clothes and creature comforts and spending money, if nothing more.

The woman who does all work and has nothing to say about the finances is usually the woman that the husband gets tired of because she has been the everlasting drudge. Every woman owes it to herself to see that she gets her equal part of his earnings after the joint interests have been adjusted. And after all, a wife's wages may be secured in many ways, but the fact that she earns it must and will be recognized.

THE HOUSE OF MOHUN

By George Gibbs.

CHAPTER IX
A Joy Ride.

IF the girl of today is properly considered in relation to her associations by the indulgent recorder of society history he will find her more their victim than their agent. A life after all is merely the sum of one's collective impressions and when custom conspires to bring into the few short years of adolescence the excitements of a whole lifetime—the wonder is not that the conduct of the girl of today is not exemplary but that she has any sense of moral obligation whatever.

It is doubtful whether Cherry Mohun, or indeed any other girl of her set, ever gave a thought in any such terms to the provocations which surrounded her. Indeed it is extremely doubtful whether she thought at all about the moral aspect of her indulgences. She took life as she found it, like a humming bird in a garden, sipping as she pleased from flower to flower, radiant in the sunshine of her own delights. And as with the humming bird, her responsibility ended with the gratification of her appetites. It was a wonderful garden full of strange and rather gorgeous flowers, some of which she found unpleasant to the taste. These she sipped not, contenting herself to pass them by with a skeptical frown of wing for those of a quieter color and a lesser odor.

One couldn't say that Cherry was unmoral any more than one could say that a humming bird was unmoral. If she was unmoral, it was in that "he had never thought upon the subject," Cherry had never thought with a great deal of seriousness about anything and those brief moments of self-communion which David Sangre had noted with approval seemed merely the outcroppings of a rich vein of valuable metal that lay far beneath the surface and which remained to be discovered even to Cherry herself. Alicia Mohun had never made a practice of seeking the consolations of religion, for she guessed, and rightly, that to a person of her definite ambitions, religion could have nothing to offer.

But, dressed in her best with Cherry by her side, she always went to church once a year on Easter Sunday—a fashionable Episcopal church where there were candles and vestments pleasant to the eye. Cherry had never been confirmed, and every woman owes it to herself to see that she gets her equal part of his earnings after the joint interests have been adjusted. And after all, a wife's wages may be secured in many ways, but the fact that she earns it must and will be recognized.

It was this kind of devotion to her friendships which made her the center of the group in which she moved, and she was quick to resent a slight or an insult to any one that she liked. She liked Bruce Cowan—admired him intensely. He had been a "peach" to her in Paris and so when, after the war he came to New York to live, she tried to make her friends swallow him horns, hoofs and tail. It was not an easy task because the older crowd was trying to begin to be snobbish again. What did it matter where Bruce Cowan came from so long as he had evening dress and behaved himself? She had had to give "Gene" and one of the others a talking-to and "Gene" had at last agreed to ask him to her dance.

But Cherry still had a feeling that her missionary work was quite successful and that there were those even in her own set who were not prepared to accept her friend without reservations. And so, since Cherry could not make her friends like him in people's houses she met him elsewhere. That was her way of showing her resentment to those who ignored him—against her mother, even, whose antagonism was quite the most difficult to endure. Just because he was a salesman in the "Magnificent Motors Co." and not a Bartou, a Chichester or a Galbraith?

Muzzy's social ambition was getting just a little on Cherry's nerves. Hadn't she gone against her will to luncheon with "Demi-John" and the old Chichester Dodo, submitted to a lot of impertinent questions from the old lady about her tastes, her talents, her health and a number of other things that were nobody's business but her own? Hadn't she been stifled with stodgy magnificence and stuffed with Victorian maxims? Hadn't she yielded to Muzzy's blandishments and made a martyr of herself during the loveliest hours of a sunny winter afternoon? And all because Muzzy wanted her to marry John Chichester. Well, she wouldn't marry him. She wasn't going to open a home for decayed gentlemen of middle age who wanted to settle down. Besides, she didn't like the shape of his nose, or the wisp of mustache, or the little abrupt way he had of pulling at it.

"Oh, a thousand things! Imagine being Mrs. Demi-John! Impossible!" She ran down the steps joyfully and into her roadster which had been brought around from the garage. She felt like one who has just been liberated from a prison, taking deep breaths of the keen air that was full of frosty sunshine. "On the loose!" She grinned as she thought of the effect of the phrase on poor Muzzy as she emerged from that atmosphere of social sanctification.

Muzzy had come down the steps of the great house with much the air of one who has paid a visit to a shrine said to possess miraculous healing powers. She had worn on her face an expression of complete beatification and Cherry had told her that she was "going on the loose."

Tears of merriment came to Cherry's eyes in the brisk wind. The trouble with Muzzy was that she had no sense of humor. "None at all," she never had had. "Poor dear! What a pity! She had lost such a lot out of life."

Cherry drove westward through the park, picked up Bruce Cowan at the office of the "Magnificent Motors Co.," and then made for the Speedway and the country which lay beyond. Distance meant nothing to Cherry except as ground which was to be covered in a given time, and the exactions of the traffic policemen having been grudgingly met, in a short while they were bowling along in the general direction of Albany with no particular object in view except to find as many fine straight stretches of road as possible and to pass over them with the greatest speed consistent with the bare preserving of life and limb.

Among other reasons, Cherry liked Bruce Cowan because he knew more about the dispersal of motors than any one that she had ever met. She liked to talk about motors and their troubles, and the relative merits of different makes of cars. These were the chief topics of conversation among the young people that she knew in less they were talking about one another and Bruce Cowan more, than others spoke with the voice of authority. Her roadster was a "Magnificent" which her companion had sold her, and it had lived up beautifully to its expensive reputation. She was sure that she had made no mistake in it or in him, for in a way Bruce was quite as magnificent as the car he sold—big, masterful, with an air of general proficiency which left very little to be desired. It was true that he was not quite so splendid in muffs as he had been in uniform—but then his eyes were lovely and his chin after the war he came to New York to live, she tried to make her friends swallow him horns, hoofs and tail. It was not an easy task because the older crowd was trying to begin to be snobbish again. What did it matter where Bruce Cowan came from so long as he had evening dress and behaved himself? At the left a fetching plaid knit coat with collar, cuffs and skirt of silk crepe knit in white to offset the bright colors in the plaid. Style bulletins tell us that plaids of this kind are to be foremost in sports clothes for the spring.

Next is an outfit of white roll-collar sweater, corduroy hat, scarf and hose and elk skin waterproof shoes. The sweater is unhampered, unharmed and best of all—"snuggly" warm as a hug or a blanket.

Third—a charming dress for southern and early spring style for spring.

Folks Who Disappear

By WINIFRED BLACK

NORFOLK, Va.—Not such a big place when you go to look for it on the map. Delightful old-fashioned, quiet, and on some wails in Norfolk hang portraits of the great and famous who have been long asleep in the quiet graveyard, with in sight of the blue water.

Some of them live in fear, old, shuttered houses with picket fences around them, and on some wails in Norfolk hang portraits of the great and famous who have been long asleep in the quiet graveyard, with in sight of the blue water.

The missing-person bureau at police headquarters in Norfolk has exactly 377 names on the list. What sort of stories are there behind that list, I wonder.

Did you ever know anyone who disappeared?

I have known six persons in my life—and four of them were men and two were women—and every one of them got up one fine morning and "disappeared."

One of the Six.

One of the six was a young man.

"I'd never marry a cave man," she flashed at him.

"I didn't mean to be rough," he said sullenly.

"But you were. You've bruised my wrist."

"I'm sorry," he tried to catch it to his lips, but she jerked away.

"I don't like to be kissed. When I decide to be I'll tell you so."

"Cherry! Don't be cruel."

She made a motion of searching for her gauntlet and then peering over the side of the car gave a slight sound of surprise.

"My glove, Bruce," she said calmly. "I've dropped it."

To Be Continued in the Post-Dispatch.

full of life and gay spirits. He had everything in life to live for—youth, health, good looks, a good position, fine prospects—and he left Boston on a lovely Saturday morning to go West and take charge of a good business.

He kissed his mother good-by and his young brother went to the station with him, saw him on the train and came home, half envious and half proud.

That young man was never seen or heard of again.

The mother spent thousands of dollars trying to find her son.

She is always hoping and praying—and all this happened, nearly 20 years ago.

When one of them had been gone 10 years the wife left behind him got a letter from South America asking where his body should be buried.

When the other had been gone 15 years his wife sat down next to him in the theater in China town after noon.

He was as surprised as she was to see him.

He said he disappeared because he couldn't bear the way moving her hands, and the way she cooked his food.

Is It Just Boredom?

The wife found out that a young person who had told him that she how to cook food, she never moved her hand when she talked.

But it turned out that the young person was anything at all, much that she did not have to move over her feet, hands, so the man's was a good deal of a him back—he said he fish, anyway. And I saw a middle-aged bear prayer meeting. She left a note behind her, but she had a letter in a small note, bear prayer meeting. She left a note behind her, but she had a letter in a small note, bear prayer meeting.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

PETER SPENDS AN UNCOMFORTABLE NIGHT

By Thornton W. Burgess

Some people out of pure spite Delight in giving others fright.

PETER RABBIT had spent an uncomfortable night as he could remember. Yes, sir, he had spent a very uncomfortable night. It was not that that hole under an old stump in the Green Forest near the new pond of Paddy the Weaver was a bad place. It was that it was plenty big enough to be quite comfortable. It was Peter's feelings that made him uncomfortable. That was it.

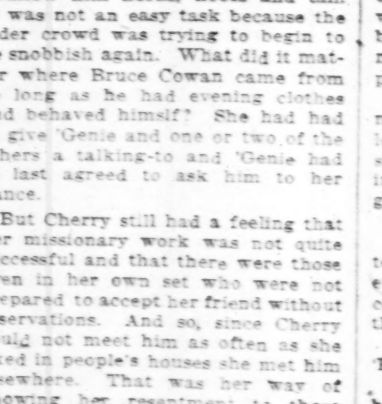

The first screech Yowler the Bob Cat had given when he started after Peter had frightened Peter so that he almost fell head over heels. It was a frightful sound for anyone to hear. Then when Yowler had screeched again at the very entrance to that hole and Peter had heard Yowler's sharp claws tearing up the earth in rage it had seemed to him that his heart would thump its way right through his sides. He knew that he was safe from Yowler so long as he remained in that hole, but even that knowledge didn't make those screeches any less frightful.

Peter would shiver at the thought of what might have happened to him. Then he would chuckle at the thought of how he had saved Paddy the Beaver from Yowler. Then he would shiver again. So for a long time he would shiver, then chuckle, then shiver, then chuckle. It was dreadful to have such mixed feelings.

Yowler screeched only a couple of times at that hole and it was only for a moment or two that he tore up the ground. After that all was still. Then Peter began to worry. Of course, he didn't know whether or not Yowler was still there. In some ways it would have been easier to have known that Yowler was there. It often is easier to know of danger than to be uncertain of it.

"I wish I was at home in the dear Old Briar Patch," whimpered Peter. "I wish I had never thought of coming over to the Green Forest. No, I don't either. No, sir, I don't. I'm glad I came over. If I hadn't there would have been no one to warn Paddy the Beaver, so I'm glad I came. But, oh, dear, I do wish I was back in the dear Old Briar Patch right now! I would start this minute, if I dared to."

But he didn't dare to. You see, he didn't know where Yowler was. Yowler might be close at hand, watch-that hole. He had no way of knowing when it would be safe for him to start home. Several times during the night he crept almost up to the entrance hole, with his mind fully made up to start. Then fear sent him back again and he would shiver again at the thought of Yowler's great claws and teeth and his fierce yellow eyes. He wondered that he spent an uncomfortable night!

OUNG AND RESORT

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
TUESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1922.

Right—Miss Palm Beach is charming in her green bathing suit with cape of green rubber applied with yellow bands and fastened at the neck by a rosette of yellow and green. A smart new bathing cap of yellow and green flowers covers the lady's tresses, while her feet are incased in the trimmest of bathing shoes and hose.

Uncle Sam Says BANTAMS

Bantam chickens are the object of a widespread interest, primarily as ornamental fowl, but also as egg layers and as children's pets. Usually they are kept in small flocks, often rather closely confined.

This booklet which is issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry tells about the characteristics of bantams, describes proper houses and runs, and contains illustrations of the different bantam breeds.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch may obtain a copy of this booklet free as long as the free edition lasts by writing to the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., asking for "F. B. 1251."

You don't have to coax big and little folks to eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and faded appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back for "just a few more Kellogg's, mother—they're wonderful!"

And, that'll make you glad, for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's doings! They make for health and happy digestions! Kellogg's are never leathery or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this:—compare the big, sunny-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes." Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest and fastest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes." Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!

American Wife Who Works Keeps Romance From Growing Gray

Has Opportunities Equalled Nowhere Else in the World, and Putting Her Shoulder to the Wheel Keeps Her From Fatness, the Grave of Love.

By May Christie.

CONTRARY to old-fashioned ideas, I take my hat off to the married woman—who having a husband with a small income—helps shoulder the financial burden, and an outside job.

I admire her courage and her energy. Marriage so often means a general slumping of the faculties—a heavy "settling down"—a "douce far niente" laziness which leads to trouble, and, particularly, Fat!

And Fatness is the grave of love. So, too, is Poverty. I am afraid.

I have observed since my arrival in this country that many married women avoid both those painful issues by—literally—putting their shoulder to the wheel and working after marriage.

In America it isn't a disgrace. In England, it would lead to the national bugbear—Talk!

"Isn't it awful . . . So-and-so can't support his wife in the state to which she's been accustomed! . . . Poor dear, she's secretary downtown. . . . No, I shan't call on her . . . etc.

Therefore, in England we have that tragedy, "the long engagement." The boy "isn't in a position to be married," so the long courtship is drawn out, year after year, until the first rapture has departed, never to return.

That seems a pity, doesn't it? Here in the States there would be no such difficulty, for the wife would earn her quota and triumph in the fact. She'd be all the more admired for it.

And I am sure that outside work, especially in the early stages of a marriage, renders a woman more intelligent and companionable, contrary to what critics say.

And isn't it infinitely better for both parties to contribute to the upkeep of a little home where they can live together than to postpone marriage until love has died or both have grown so accustomed to each other that every thrill has gone?

American ways are peculiarly suited to this 50-50 marriage. In England, a girl wouldn't make sufficient salary to warrant her leaving her kitchen, unless she were unusually brilliant.

But American girls have golden opportunities. They can earn as much as men, and lay plenty by for a rainy day or the arrival of a new baby. There are excellent cheap restaurants everywhere where the evening meal may be enjoyed together, not to mention luncheons in the drug stores (absolutely unknown in England) and quick-service counters at a very moderate rate. Transit is very rapid, and absurdly cheap—about one-fifth of what it is in England.

So, young American wives who are pondering whether it mightn't be a good thing to help John, or Gene, or George with the financial burden at

LINE an oblong pan with pastry and then spread thickly with thick preserves. Sprinkle three-quarters cup of finely chopped nuts over the preserve, then cover in lat-fashion with inch-wide strips of pastry. Brush the top pastry with beaten egg and milk and bake in slow oven for 35 minutes. Cover the top of the baked pastry with thin water icing, and then cut in oblongs.

Love Letters That Made History

By JOSEPH KAYE
Congreve and Arabella Hunt

NOT altogether sincere, too polished, but charming and passionate enough to be treasured by a love-stricken woman among her most priceless possessions are the love letters of William Congreve. Congreve is known to history as the greatest master in English of literary comedy. His stage comedies are ranked among the equal of the immortal comedies of Moliere. He lived in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries in London, and produced five plays which were immensely successful: "The Old Bachelor," "Double Dealing," "Love for Love," "The Mourning Bride," and "The Way of the World."

In connection with his first work, a youthful novel, there was coined that classic saying by the famous Dr. Johnson, "I would rather praise that book than read it," which can be made partner to Mark Twain's observation that "a classic is a book that is always praised and never read."

Congreve gave his heart to various ladies and especially to one of his actresses, Mrs. Bracegirdle, who bestowed upon him her favors very generously. But the letter below was written to another mistress, a Mrs. Arabella Hunt.

"Dear Madam: Not believe that I love you? You cannot pretend to be so incredulous. If you do not believe my tongue, consult my eyes, consult your own. You will find by yours that they have charms; by mine that I have a heart which feels them. Recall to mind what happened last night."

"What cannot a day produce! The night before I thought myself a happy man, in want of nothing, approved by men of wit and applauded by others. Pleased—nay, charmed—

A word to all women who bake—

Where the recipe calls for baking powder, it's a warning to choose it carefully because baking powder is vital to baking success.

The sale of Calumet is 2½ times as much as that of any other brand. Moderate in cost—prevents failure—never varies.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

THE PASSING SHOW.

THE Majors are at loggerheads. And trouble seems impending: We thought with the lamented Feds. All baseball wars were ending. They'd save themselves a flock of coin. And future lamentations. If both the major leagues would join The famous League of Nations.

All roads now lead to Louisville. (To use a trite expression). Where Col. J. Q. Dollard will make a great impression. The clubs that are already strong. To make themselves much stronger. Will bring a bunch of kale along. To make the long green longer.

Third basemen are in great demand. Except in New York City. They're scarce and very hard to land. Which seems to be a pity. But if we heard of one for sale. And had a chance to grab him. The Yankees with a bunch of kale. Undoubtedly would nab him.

Clemenceau left us Saturday. And all was quiet Sunday. Jack Pershing dropped in yesterday. To cheer us on blue Monday. These famous men we're glad to greet. And keep the welkin humming. And there's a rumor on the street. That Santa Claus is coming.

STYLES CHANGE.

We note that the lad who used to wear his hat on the back of his neck is now resting it on the bridge of his nose.

Outside of winning any pennants. St. Louis managed to hog nearly all the other honors for the season of 1932. We can't have everything.

Perhaps it is just as well that we didn't win the pennant, as we would have had no place to put the customers.

We trust this condition will be remedied so that everybody can have a chance to see the w. a. next year.

Speaking of third basemen, the Browns are ready to do business on a basis of four for one any time.

HOW COME? Chin Geehee, a railroad builder of Hongkong, claims that he died 30 years ago and that God sent him back. But inasmuch as Chin hasn't produced a corpus delicti, his statement might be taken with the usual grain of salt.

Coach Yost is out with his annual denial of his retirement from football. Now let the basketball game proceed.

"Taylor Fears America May Descend to Golf." How do you go about it, old chap? "Humane Landlord Wins Popularity in Tokyo." It might happen in Japan.

An American landlord, in a popularity contest, might get his own vote but it isn't a cinch that it would be counted.

THE CHOICE OF YOUNG COHEN.

IT so befell in the months preceding our entry in the Great War that in a suburb of Chicago a preparedness league was organized. Swept away by patriotic love for his adopted country a youth named Cohen joined it. Now, military drill was a part of the duties of a member, and young Cohen did not take with any great amount of enthusiasm to this feature.

One evening the commander of his squad sought to rouse him. "Buck up, Herman!" he said. "You learn how to be a soldier, and some of these days you may go back to the old country—to Poland—and be a Field Marshal."

"I think," said Herman, "I'd rather stay here and be a Marshall Field."
